INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

Final Adjournment of the Thirty-fifth Congress.

Loss of the Post-Office, the Post-Route and Ocean Mail Bills.

LIST OF THE ACTS AND RESOLUTIONS PASSED.

EXTRA SESSION OF THE SENATE.

Superintendent of Indian Affairs in California—Governor of Washington Territory, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, March 4.

JAMES Y. McDUFFIE, of Georgia, has been appointed Superintendent of Indian Affairs in California, vice HENLEY, removed.

Colonel G. W. GHOLSON, of Mississippi, has been appointed Governor of Washington Territory, vice McMULLEN, resigned.

The loss of the Post-Office bill, I am assured by several members of the Cabinet, will not lead to an extra session. The postal service will be reduced to await Congressional action. The matter, however, is yet to be considered in Cabinet.

The members have generally left this afternoon, and the city is already quite deserted.

The Senate will probably adjourn on Tuesday.

The Postmaster-General is considered out of danger. The sudden death of his Third Assistant, Mr. MARRON, is deeply regretted. Q.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Friday, March 4.

All the general Appropriation bills which were passed by both Houses received the President's signature.

The Post-office Appropriation and Post-route bills failed to become laws. The former appropriates about twenty millions of dollars.

Whether an extra session will be called, in consequence of its loss, is a matter for Executive consideration. So far no reliance is to be placed on the rumors to that effect.

Amid the confusion in the Clerks' offices, it cannot yet be definitely ascertained whether any private bills which passed both Houses failed to receive the President's approval.

The Miscellaneous Appropriation bill contains a section for the extension of the Treasury Note law for two years, an appropriation of $432,000 for the Coast Survey, which was agreed to with singular unanimity, besides appropriations for the Light-house establishment, the survey of the public lands, taking the next census, &c.

The Ocean Mail Steamer bill was killed, but there is appended to the bill to carry into effect the treaty with the Dacotah and Tonawanda Indians an appropriation for complying with the existing contracts for carrying mails via Panama and Tehuantepec to California.

The President was at the Capitol this morning, attending to business.

The House failed, as heretofore, to send him a message, asking whether he had further communication to make, and that Congress was ready to adjourn, several gentlemen having objected to the suspension of the roll-call on a private bill, which was defeated in order that this courtesy might be extended.

The House removed every trace of the abolition of the franking privilege and the increase of postage.

The galleries were densely crowded to witness the closing scenes.

Many members left this afternoon for their homes.

JOHN MARRON, Third Assistant Postmaster-General died last night. It is said he was at his office yesterday attending business.

The Post-office Appropriation bill contained an item of three millions for the deficiencies of the present year, and which was absolutely required to meet accumulated obligations. With this the Department could have got along comfortably till the 1st of July. No means can be available till the 1st of April, when the proceeds of the quarter will be paid in. After the 30th of June, none of the incoming revenue can be expended, as the present law will have ceased to operate. The land as well as the ocean service, and consequently the whole machinery of the Department, are thus disastrously affected.

SWEENY, RITTENHOUSE, FANT & Co., of this city, to whom was awarded three millions of the late Government loan, have negotiated for the whole amount in New-York.

XXXVth CONGRESS—Second Session.

[Continuation of Proceedings at the Night Session.]

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Friday, March 4—4 A. M.

At 3 o'clock A. M. the doors of the Senate Chamber were reopened, and Senators reassembled.

Mr. SEWARD said that as the Senate was now awaiting the action of the House, he would move that a recess be taken.

Mr. JOHNSON, of Tennessee, moved that instead of taking a recess, the Senate take up his resolution calling for estimates for the next Congress on a basis of fifty millions of dollars as the extent of the annual expenditure.

Objection was made, and the Senate took a short recess.

When the Senate reassembled, they took up some private bills, of course without any expectation that their action upon them would be concurred in by the House. Among the bills was one granting a pension to the widow of General PERSIFER F. SMITH.

Mr. FOOT, of Vermont, presented a resolution tendering the thanks of the Senate to the Vice-President for his able, impartial and dignified conduct in the Chair, which was adopted.

The Senate then took several recesses of ten minutes each, everything being at a dead lock, pending some decisive action on the part of the House.

Mr. JONES offered a resolution to pay the clerks of the several Committees sixty days extra pay. After some discussion, the resolution was laid on the table by a vote of 37 in the affirmative.

The Executive, Judicial and Legislative Appropriation bill was signed by the President.

Mr. JOHNSON, of Tennessee, offered his resolution to prepare estimates to limit expenses of Government hereafter to fifty millions.

Mr. BELL added, as an amendment, that the causes of the increased expenditures of Government be investigated.

Mr. CAMERON offered a resolution, asking for a Committee of Investigation to inquire whether there has been any malfeasance in the matter of printing the Post-office blanks. Adopted.

[This is the case of Mr. RICE, of Philadelphia, Penn., to which Mr. CAMERON recently referred.]

A message was here received from the House, announcing that it had passed a new Postal Appropriation bill, in which they asked the concurrence of the Senate. The meaning of this is that the House, claiming the exclusive right to originate revenue bills, refused to recognize the amendments of the Senate raising the rates of postage, &c. The Senate, on the other hand, not consenting to waive its construction of its own privileges, refused to recede on the dictation of the House. It was therefore assented to by the joint Committees of Conference, in order to guard the privileges of both Houses, to set aside both bills, and that the House originate another similar one, in which the Senate should concur.

Half-past Eleven A. M.—Messrs. PEARCE and TOOMBS strongly condemned the action of the Conference Committee, which they considered a surrender of the constitutional rights of the Senate.

The bill was read the first time by its title.

Mr. TOOMBS availed himself of the rules of the Senate to object to a second reading.

Mr. SEWARD explained and vindicated the action of the Committee.

Mr. SEWARD moved for the second reading.

Mr. MASON—and several Senators at once—"I object."

Messrs. BAYARD and MASON spoke severally against the action of the House, describing it as the first revolutionary step.

Mr. HALE said the Senate had performed a greater revolutionary act, in admitting the Indiana Senators.

Mr. TOOMBS retorted on Mr. HALE.

Mr. FESSENDEN, in behalf of the Republicans, expressed his unwillingness to stop the mail service of the country.

Mr. DOUGLAS said he was sorry to see the service stopped by a punctilio between the Senate and the House. He believed the Senate had better act on the merits of the bill.

Mr. MASON moved a resolution which was adopted, informing the House, that the Senate, having finished the legislative business, is ready to adjourn.

The discussion was then brought to a premature end.

So the Post-office is closed and the Senate adjourns sine die.

During the session, twenty-five hours of business proceeded, without interruption, or any infraction of the dignity of the Senate.

No act so much became it as its leaving.

The clock struck—and the Thirty-fifth Congress passed into history.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, March 4—4 A. M.

The House acted upon the Senate's amendments to the Miscellaneous Appropriation bill under the operation of the previous question, and concurred in several of them, including that appropriating $500,000 for work upon the Treasury buildings.

The House concurred in the amendment appropriating $412,000 for payment of the Florida Volunteers, and by four majority rejected the amendment abolishing the franking privilege.

The amendment extending the operation of the Treasury Note law was then read.

Mr. OWEN JONES raised a point of order. He denied the right of the Senate to insert a clause of this kind in an Appropriation bill. They were prohibited from so doing by that clause of the Constitution which limited the origination of revenue bills to the House of Representatives.

Mr. JONES, of Tennessee, contended that the amendment only provided for the exchanging of new Treasury notes for old ones.

The Speaker overruled the point of order, and said it was for the House to determine whether the amendment was constitutional or not.

An appeal was taken from the Speaker's decision, and the appeal was laid on the table.

The amendment was then rejected—Yeas, 92; Nays, 93.

Mr. MARSHALL, of Kentucky, moved to reconsider the vote and to lay that motion on the table, which was lost by a majority of nine against it.

A very lively interest was manifested during these proceedings, which occupied considerable time.

The Secretary of the Treasury was present in the Hall during the whole time.

Finally, at 4 o'clock A. M., the vote by which the Treasury note amendment was rejected was reconsidered, and the amendment concurred in by Yeas, 94, Nays, 89.

The amendments increasing the appropriations for the California mails via Panama and Tehuantepec were rejected.

The House then took up the Senate's resolution asking for a Committee of Conference in relation to the Post-office Appropriation bill.

Mr. DAVIS, of Maryland, said that this resolution meant neither more nor less than that the Committee of Conference should make a final disposition of the bill, which the House had refused to do.

Mr. GROW, of Pennsylvania, maintained that the House had kept strictly within the Parliamentary rule in the course which it had pursued. He was perfectly willing to confer with the Senate, but he was not willing to take up the bill.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Maine, said the House had already refused to consider this bill, and by what legerdemain could it now be taken up out of its order?

The Speaker here interposed, and said that, in order to relieve the House from its difficulty, he would retain the bill for the present. He considered the question between the two Houses one of form rather than of substance.

Finally the House concurred in the resolution of the Senate for a conference, and the House took a recess until 9 o'clock.

AFTER THE RECESS.

It was nearly 10 o'clock before a quorum of members was present, and several efforts were made to take up private bills.

A resolution was passed allowing six thousand dollars for mileage and per diem to BIRD B. CHAPMAN, who contested the right of Mr. FERGUSON to a seat as delegate from Nebraska.

A number of unsuccessful motions to amend the rules were made, and all private bills were laid on the table.

Messages were frequently received from the Senate, and others from the President, notifying the House that he had signed certain bills.

The House now passed a private bill, by yeas and nays, and then called the yeas and nays again on laying a motion to reconsider on the table. Thirty-five minutes were thus wasted.

Eleven O'Clock.—Mr. LETCHER made a report from the Committee of Conference on the Post-Office Appropriation bill to the effect that, while neither House is understood to waive any Constitutional right, it is recommended that the House pass the bill precisely as it came from the Senate on the 26th of February. The report was agreed to, and the bill passed.

Noon arrived before the completion of the last roll-call, when the Speaker said:

GENTLEMEN: The hour has arrived for us to sever the political and personal relations which have existed between us for the last two years. I congratulate you on the consummation of most of the necessary measures of legislation to carry on the Government without embarrassment. I embrace this, the last occasion I shall have, to return my grateful acknowledgements for the uniform courtesy and kindness you have extended to me as your presiding officer. Difficult and trying as has been the position, its labors have been greatly diminished by the cordial support you have given me. The dignity and decorum which has marked your deliberations will compare most favorably with those of your predecessors. To this fact, I attribute whatever success I have obtained in this Chair, in making my administration acceptable to you, and for this I thank you. I have throughout endeavored to act with equal and exact justice to every individual, party, and section. If the Chair has been in error, and I have failed in my duty to any one of you, I now beg your pardon. Trusting, gentlemen, that our deliberations here may realize for this noble Republic the most prosperous development of its rich and great resources, and invoking the blessings of a kind Heaven upon you, I now perform my last official act by declaring this House adjourned sine die.

The Address was received with great enthusiasm, cheers and clapping of hands. Some of the members bid one another farewell, and soon the hall was deserted by all save the laborers, who set to work to remove the paper rubbish which lay thickly scattered in all directions.

EXTRA SESSION OF THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Friday, March 4.

Immediately after the adjournment of Congress to-day, the Senate commenced its extraordinary Executive Session, in accordance with the proclamation of the President.

The new Senators, whose credentials had previously been presented, were sworn in.

Mr. DOOLITTLE, of Wisconsin, offered a resolution requesting the President to open negotiations with the Central and South American States, with a view to settlements of free persons of color where they can enjoy the rights of citizenship.

Its consideration was postponed until to-morrow, to which day the Senate adjourned.

Execution of Murderers at Toronto.

TORONTO, Friday, March 4.

The execution of FLEMING, the Telegraph operator and O'LEARY, who were both found guilty of murder, at the last assizes, took place to-day in presence of a vast number of spectators. O'LEARY was attended by a Catholic clergyman, and read a short confession on the gallows. FLEMING was attended by a Protestant clergyman. He met his end calmly and without bravado, and gave the clergyman a short account in writing of the crime—attributing his ruin to bad company and drink. The greatest sympathy has been felt for him, and every exertion was used to procure a reprieve, but to no purpose, the Government being determined to put down the use of deadly weapons, which has become so prevalent.

Loss of the Schooner Harvey F. Payton.

PROVIDENCE, Friday, March 4.

The schooner Harvey F. Payton, NICKERSON, from Boston for Alexandria, went ashore on Beaver Tail, about 9 o'clock last night, and has gone to pieces. The crew were saved. Of the cargo, consisting of 100 tons of granite and merchandise, nothing will be saved.

Non-Arrival of the Europa.

SANDY HOOK, Friday, March 4—Midnight.

There are as yet no signs of the steamship Europa, now due off this point, with Liverpool dates of the 19th ult. Weather cloudy. Wind fresh and blowing from the West.

Markets.

SAVANNAH, Thursday, March 3.

The sales of COTTON, to-day, were 2,025 bales, market closing with an advancing tendency. Sales of the week, 9,600 bales. Receipts of the week, 5,290 bales, against 12,500 in the corresponding week last year. Increased receipts at this port, 182,000 bales; do. at all the ports, 958,000 bales. Stock at Savannah, 59,500 bales.

CHARLESTON, Thursday, March 3.

The sales of Cotton, to-day, were 3,800 bales; sales of the week, 22,000 bales, the market closing at ⅛c.@¼c. better prices on the week; Middling, 11⅞c. Rice buoyant at an advance of ⅛c. Yesterday's sales of Cotton were 3,250 bales.

CHARLESTON, Friday, March 4.

The sales of Cotton to noon to-day were 2,000 bales.

SAVANNAH, Friday, March 4.

The sales of COTTON to-day, were 510 bales. Holders demand an advance on the lower qualities, which checks operations.

AUGUSTA, Friday, March 4.

The sales of COTTON for the past two days have been 2,300 bales. There has been a large speculative inquiry. The receipts at the interior towns are unusually small.

CINCINNATI, Friday, March 4.

MEETING OF GERMANS—DEATH OF CHARLES SAMPSON—THE HOOSAC TUNNEL, ETC.

BOSTON, Friday, March 4.

Quite a large meeting of the German population assembled at the Turner Hall last night, and adopted resolutions denouncing the measure requiring two years' residence, after naturalization, before being allowed to vote. The speeches were mostly in German.

CHARLES SAMPSON, of the publishing firm of PHILLIPS & SAMPSON, died yesterday at his residence in Brookline, of consumption, at the age of 41 years.

The Hoosac Tunnel bill has passed the Senate and the indications are favorable to its final passage in the House.

An arrival at this port, with Buenos Ayres dates of Jan. 5, reports that the United States steamers Fulton, Water-Witch and Harriet Lane, with the brigs Perry, Dolphin and Bainbridge in tow, passed Colonia, Jan. 2, on their way to Paraguay. All well.

A [illegible] subscription ball in aid of the Mount Vernon purchase, under the auspices of our most influential and fashionable citizens, at the Boston Theatre to-night, is a very brilliant and successful affair. EDWARD EVERETT is Chairman of the Board of Managers. The tickets are $5 each, and a handsome sum will be realized to the patriotic fund in aid of which the ball is given.

A special dispatch from Washington, announcing that Congress had passed a resolution in effect to continue the Boston Post-office in its present location, created much talk to-day. It is understood, however, that Postmaster CAPEN has received no official orders countermanding his original plan removing the office to Summer-street, and that the removal will take place between now and Monday next.

Motion for a New Trial Denied.

ALBANY, Friday, March 4.

Judge GOULD has denied the motion for a new trial for JOHN WILSON, convicted of the murder of PATRICK McCARTY in West Troy. He is sentenced to be executed April 27.

Cotton Ship on Fire.

NEW-ORLEANS, Thursday, March 4.

The ship Vanguard, lying at Algiers, opposite this city, took fire last night between decks, and it is feared, will be wholly destroyed. She cleared yesterday for Cronstadt, and has 41,000 bales of cotton on board. Her cargo is doubtless insured in Europe. The vessel belongs to J. W. PHILLIPS, of New-York, and is of about 1,200 tons burden.

Lynching Outrage in Kentucky.

HAWESVILLE, Ky., Thursday, March 3.

The mob last night broke into the jail, and seizing THOMAS S. LOW, confined there for protection, and shot him dead. Low was the individual who yesterday made the attack in the Court-House upon Prosecuting-Attorney MAXWELL.

The Yacht Wanderer's Negroes.

SAVANNAH, Friday, March 4.

The yacht Wanderer, is advertised for Marshal's sale on the 12th inst.

It is rumored that fifty of the Africans brought by her have been arrested in the lower portion of Georgia, but the story is doubted.

The Charges Against Officers of the Mayor's Squad.

The investigation of the complaint preferred against Officer WYNKOOP, by Sergeant BERNEY, was resumed at 11 A. M., yesterday, before Police Commissioner BOWEN. A large number of Policemen, interested in the proceedings, were present.

Officer L. Place was examined—He knew nothing pertinent to the issue; he had received $50 once to put in the Fund for the Relief of Widows and Orphans of Policemen.

Richard O. Swan's testimony amounted to nothing.

P. B. Fowler testified that Officer Brandt's general character was bad.

D. K. Seaman gave similar testimony.

B. Neiss sworn—Thought Brandt's character was not good.

Officer McArthur had received money for expenses in going to Virginia and bringing Mason Thomas to New-York; would not believe Brandt under oath.

Officer Busteed testified that he once heard that Sergeant Berney went to a man named Brady, arrested for selling obscene books, and told him to come to the Mayor's office at ten o'clock, and the indictment would be settled or quashed; he (witness) went to Mr. Brady and told him to have nothing to do with Berney, by request of a Mr. Long; he thought there was nothing said about money.

Here Sergeant Berney, who cross-examined most of the witnesses, explained that Mr. Stanley came to the office and asked if there was not an indictment against a man named Brady, and if it could not be quashed; he (Berney) pretended that the evidence was destroyed for the purpose of catching Stanley, and then asked for the money; Brady was anxious that the indictment should be quashed, as he had gone into respectable business; he (Berney) told Brady that if he would come to the Mayor's office and make an affidavit that Stanley had offered to settle it——

[At this point Commissioner Bowen stopped the examination, and said this matter would be the subject of a separate trial, next Tuesday.]

Officer Busteed resumed—Sergeant Berney had requested him to get $45 worth of books from the Harpers' for what he (witness) did not know; he did not get them; he had heard Brandt make threats against Sergeant Croft, and would not take Brandt's word; he had told Berney he could get the books at cost price if Berney gave him the money to get them with; they were to cost $34 or $35; he did not think the books could ever have have been paid for; Berney did not mean to get the books from the Harpers', but from him; he, once after this, told Berney that it was hard for him to go and complain about him (witness) to Capt. Walling.

Officer Blackwell testified that the diamond ring for Berney's wife was first spoken of by the men after a dinner at Berney's house; Berney knew nothing about it; he (witness) heard Berney order the books; Berney was to pay for them; knew that one case was withdrawn, after going to Court, by the Corporation Attorney.

Officer Hector Moore knew nothing of the matters at issue.

Officer Thomas Black, sworn—He never heard that any officer had received money, except himself; this was when he took a prisoner to New-London; his expenses were paid by the Sheriff of New-London.

Officer Davis knew nothing pertinent.

Capt. Leonard, sworn—He knew of the intimation about the sergeants' demanding money from Officer Wynkoop; heard other intimations from Brandt and Van Arsdale about it; Van Arsdale stated to him that Sergeant Croft had demanded money from himself or Officer Gaylor; Van Arsdale was very reluctant about it and about being made a witness in this case, as he did not wish to injure any man; he (witness) had heard from the Mayor's Clerk, and others, that the men had "laid" for chances to receive money or presents and could hardly be induced to go out of the office to serve a simple notice; Officer Van Arsdale had stated to him that either he or Officer Gaylor was present when Sergeant Croft demanded and received money; that it was either a mock auction or a "bogus" case, and that when the parties (there were three of them) returned, the money was divided; it amounted to only about $1 50; the officers were connected together in the transaction; nothing was said about its being borrowed money; nor was it said that Van Arsdale lent Croft $1 50; this was before any charge was made; Van Arsdale came to witness voluntarily, by request of Sergeant Berney; all this evidence was hearsay.

Officer James McCloud, sworn—The largest amount of money that he had ever received was $25, a reward; he divided it with others; he had heard Berney say he did not care how much money the men made, and he (witness) was often asked to "stand the oysters," as he had made money enough that day; he believed all the men in the Squad, from the Sergeant down, had received money; he had never told the Sergeants that he received money; they heard of it, he supposed, from report, as it was the common talk; Sergeant Berney once asked him who made the most money that day; witness had made $25 in a ticket case; had heard that the officers had made more; he had received money for arresting parties; one day he received $5 from Stanley for arresting parties; Stanley never gave him any other money; he had given him other papers like one shown to witness.

[The paper was a note, stating that lottery policies were sold at a specified place.]

Here Mr. Marcus Cicero Stanley said: "Mr. Bowen, am I on trial?"

"What's your name, Sir?" asked Mr. Bowen.

"It is Stanley," replied that individual.

"No Sir, you are not," answered Mr. Bowen.

Mr. McCloud further testified that he had received such notes a dozen times from Stanley, in Berney's presence; he had been asked by parties outside not to arrest parties in the lottery business.

[This line of examination, conducted by Sergeant Berney, was stopped by Mr. Bowen.]

Mr. Stanley here said he had paid Berney hundreds of dollars.

Sergeant Berney, leaning back in his chair, said: "You lie, if you say so!"

Examination resumed—Berney had never warned witness about taking money from anybody; he (witness) never gave either of the Sergeants any money, nor did they ask him for any.

Officer Henry W. Hall sworn—He knew nothing of any intimations from the desk in the Mayor's Squad room, that the men must divide, or of any officer's receiving or demanding any money for duty performed other than their salaries; he did not recollect shaking Sergeant Berney's hand and leaving $5 in it in the Mayor's office; he once paid Berney $3 that he owed him in the Mayor's office; the day Pete Dawson was examined, witness went out with Dawson to get bail; Dawson did not give him $10, and he (witness) was sure he did not give Berney $5; the money he borrowed from Berney was to buy policies with, so as to see whether suspected parties sold policies; he gave it to Berney out of his own pocket; Berney told him that money used thus by him would be refunded.

Officer McCloud (recalled) said—He had bought policies with his own money in this way; the men told him the money thus expended would be refunded to him by the Mayor.

The investigation was here adjourned to 11 A. M. to-day.

AFFAIRS AT ALBANY.

A Substitute for the Registry Bill that finds favor—Assembly adopts the five minute rule—Ruthless slaughter of bad bills—The Increase of Wharfage—The Farce of the Corruption Investigations.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Friday, March 4, 1859.

At 11 o'clock to-day, the Registry bill was the special order in the Assembly. Mr. BROCKWAY offered a substitute for the pending bill. The substitute provides that three weeks before a general election, the Inspectors of Elections shall meet at the places for holding elections, and by the aid of the last preceding poll-lists, and otherwise, make up a registry of voters for their several election districts, putting in separate columns, against each name, the residence by number of his house if possible, his birth-place, &c. The Inspectors are to add such names as they know to be voters, whether the voters appear before them or not, and to be in session in the country one day, and in the city two days, from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M. Each Inspector is to take a copy of this list, give all who wish opportunity to consult it, and a copy is to be filed with the town clerk of towns, and the county clerk of cities. On election days one of the Inspectors is to check the names of the voters on this registry as they vote. If a man is registered, he can vote without any hindrance, provided the Inspectors are satisfied, and if challenged he may be sworn. If not registered, and the Inspectors are all satisfied that he is a voter, he can vote; but if not satisfied he must either take the oath, or on the oath of a registered voter be identified as a voter in the district. False swearing is to be deemed perjury—and is to be punished with not less than a year's imprisonment. Within three days after election the Inspectors are to meet and make out from their registry and the one furnished by the late election, a true registry, file a copy in the town or County Clerk's office, and carefully keep one each for themselves. The Inspectors and their clerks are each to have the same compensation by day as they now receive by law, for their services. The bill provides only for general elections, but inasmuch as the registry is to be filed, where copies can at any time be obtained, it will furnish challengers with excellent facilities for preventing any large number of illegal voters from reaching the polls, even in the worst parts of the cities. There are some districts in New-York where all the Inspectors are of one way of thinking, politically; that is bad, but can it be helped? The act will impose little expense—in the counties very little, and far less in the cities than any other that has been named. This bill is the child of many—tedious, sober and earnest sessions of the true friends of a registry law. Moreover, the probability is that in the Senate it will fall in among friends, and fare better than any other yet conceived. Among its warm friends are several who were loudest, from the start for a stringent law, as well as most of those who have been denounced as enemies of any law. On being read, this substitute was briefly advocated by several friends of a stringent law, and also by some who have been announced as opposed to any Registry law—a remarkable harmony prevailing. Among its strong friends are Messrs. MILLS, CONKLING, SHEPHERD, SHAW, MACKIN, FARMER, EVELAND, HUTCHINSON and MORRIS. After discussing it for an hour, progress was reported, the bill ordered printed forthwith, and made the special order for 12 o'clock of Monday. Possibly it may be somewhat amended, but I think there is no doubt it will go along easily.

Perhaps the wisest thing done in Assembly to-day was the adoption of a resolution to the effect that, hereafter, neither in the House nor in the Committee of the Whole, shall any member speak more than five minutes to any one question. It was put in on a question of privilege, by Mr. MILLER, who protested that he was bored to death by long-winded speeches, and that, as a personal matter, relief must be granted. Several important bills were reported: By Mr. HALL, to provide for the collection, from the County of Richmond, of the expenses incurred in sending troops to that County to protect Quarantine property. By Mr. CROCKER, to incorporate the New-York Preparatory School of Medicine. By Mr. S. GRAVES, to provide for the care of idle and truant children in Brooklyn. By Mr. VAN CORTLANDT, against abolishing the office of Regents of the University. This report being agreed to, this bill is dead. By Mr. LAWRENCE, a minority report against the bill to collect from Richmond County the expenses of sending troops to prevent the destruction of public property at Quarantine. By Mr. VAN HORN, against abolishing the office of School Commissioner. This bill, too, dies, the report being agreed to. By Mr. DAVIS, against compelling Banks to redeem at par in the City of New-York. Agreed to. Also, to incorporate a Savings Bank in East Brooklyn. By Mr. POND to establish a Board of Health in New-York. By Mr. [illegible], to establish an Insurance Department.

The House, henceforth, has evening sessions for every evening but Saturday. Business is pouring in yet, and the Committees are in session most of the available time during the recess. The Wharfage bill is not stirred from the Committee on Commerce, though Mr. REILLY, who introduced it, is untiring in his efforts to fetch it out. The Judiciary Committee is in labor of a lot of bills reorganizing Courts and Departments in New-York, and which purpose to plow the ground from under some of your officers who are not favorites of your people. The Committee on Ways and Means is deeply engaged with the Tax Levy, and men enough from New-York have been heard for and against certain items on it to found a flourishing colony. The Long Island delegates were saved a world of trouble by the miscarriage of the effort, to-day, to refer the Atlantic-street Tunnel bill to them to report complete.

When Count JOHN DE SMITH became a radical Reformer and Chartist, it was a great grief to plain Mr. JOHN SMITH that his friends felt called on to go up and swear to the good character and unimpeachable conservatism of their old neighbor. So Senator WILLIAM A. WHEELER cannot much enjoy the frequent letters he receives, from his friends, de on the famous Rouse's Bridge battle and in four years of State service in the Senate, inquiring how his Corruption Investigation gets on. Now be it known to all men and women who have any care about such things, that there are two Senators WHEELER, both able and excellent men, in the New-York State Senate; that Senator O. B. WHEELER, from Orange County, leather dealer and Free-Soil American, is the honest gentleman who presides over the Committee on Public Buildings to which, anxious for a bit of fun, the Senate, in an unlucky day, turned over the Lobby items of the Governor's Message, and which Committee, taking the thing in sober earnest, has been running ever since, as some aver, by parties outside of the Senate; the other Senator, WILLIAM A. WHEELER, lawyer and banker of Franklin County, denounced the proceedings of the Committee as a farce, and called for another Committee, of which Senator LOVELAND was made Chairman, to investigate some fresh charges of bribery and corruption growing out of the other Committee's proceedings; but Senator WILLIAM A. WHEELER now admits and urges that the proceedings of Committee No. 2 are getting to be quite as farcical as the other's. Most sensible men agree with him, I think, and long to see both of them discharged of their troubles. For if, in looking up the Albany Bridge case where so much corruption was charged, there had been any desire to reveal anything, why were not the Treasurer of the Central Railroad and other officers, every day visible on State-street, subpœnaed and asked to show the disposition of their funds about the time of the Bridge bill's passing? Why call in all the little folks who were at best but go-betweens, unless it was to beget pressure from the circumference, and frighten the men at the centre who really did know if there was any truth in the charges of improper influences. And if Committee No. 2 had been boldly in earnest, from so fat a field they could not have come in with so lean picking. To-day the Senate spent most of its morning discussing a proposition to stop both the Committees. They both reported progress, and another night is to be spent in talking over their disposition. A little besides this was done. Mr. AMES moved to take from the table the bill relative to wharfage in the City of New-York, and that it be referred to Committee of the Whole. Mr. ELY moved to amend by referring the bill to the delegations from New-York and Brooklyn. Mr. SLOAN stated that he would be ready to make a minority report Tuesday morning. The motion to take the report from the table was agreed to. Mr. ELY's motion to refer to a Select Committee, consisting of New-York and Brooklyn, was lost. Mr. NOXON moved to amend—that the bill be printed and the report lie on the table till Tuesday noon. The motion so amended was adopted.

The wharfage bill referred to increases the rates of wharfage in New-York and Brooklyn. It is the same bill that, in the Assembly, lies locked up in Committee, it being deemed too valuable a log to roll in unattended by some others that need help and are a little too rotten to bear careless handling. The Quarantine and Staten Island bills are the Assembly's special order for to-morrow. The Port-Warden bill has not yet been printed.

Professor MITCHELL's lecture on Astronomy last night drew a large crowd of intelligent people to the Congregational Church through a heavy snow-storm. Among the quiet and interested auditors I noticed Prof. GOULD, late of the Observatory. GLAUCUS.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Friday, March 4.

The bill to regulate the rates of wharfage in the cities of New-York and Brooklyn and the report accompanying it were laid on the table.

The bill to exempt the premium notes of Insurance Companies from taxation was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. O. B. WHEELER, as one of the Committee to investigate the Albany Bridge case, made a report respecting the progress of the investigation, stating that he had evidence not yet given which he believed would prove corruption.

Mr. AMES reported the number of meetings the Committee had held, and the number of witnesses examined, and such facts as had been elicited.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee to investigate the charges made by Mr. O. B. WHEELER, reported they had examined all the testimony believed to be of any importance, and found nothing for the action of the Senate. The testimony was very contradictory.

Mr. DIVEN made a strong speech, declaring his conviction that a conspiracy existed to crush out the investigation, and blaming the Committee for keeping the clerk they did in their employ, and for the manner they had conducted the proceedings. He examined the testimony of Mr. CHAUNCEY BOUGHTON, declaring his belief that it showed a desire to suppress the investigation.

The Senate held afternoon and evening sessions.

A warm debate took place in relation to the Investigating Committees.

Mr. DIVEN stated that the Committee on Public Buildings, who were investigating the Albany Bridge case, were entirely incompetent. One member was constantly absent or incapacitated by illness or infirmity, and the two remaining members when they met were divided, thus rendering the Committee entirely inoperative. This, however, did not excuse parties for attempting to bribe the Clerk whom the Committee had unfortunately engaged. He moved that the Sergeant-at-Arms be ordered to arrest HIRAM EATON and bring him to the bar of the Senate.

The motion was eventually laid on the table.

Mr. W. A. WHEELER designated all the action of the Investigating Committee as a farce, and declared that the testimony clearly established the fact that it was run by outsiders.

Mr. NOXON designated the whole affair as a squabble between the members of the American Party. The whole affair was disgraceful.

After much sparring, the fact was stated that the new subpœnas said to be out, had been issued within a few hours, and that the one for THURLOW WEED had been issued since the resolution to discharge the Committee was introduced.

A resolution was then adopted discharging both Committees of Investigation from further action—that on the Albany Bridge bill, because, after fifty days had expired, it had accomplished no result; and that to investigate the charges made by Mr. O. B. WHEELER, on the ground that all the testimony of importance had been taken, and nothing found on which any action of the Senate was necessary.

During the session Mr. DIVEN apologized for the remarks he had made in the morning reflecting on the conduct of Mr. CHAUNCEY BOUGHTON, and declared his conviction that that gentleman had acted from the purest motives and best intentions throughout.

Mr. SPINOLA presented the report of the Special Committee to investigate the affairs of the Metropolitan Police. He stated that he should have made the report much earlier in view of its importance, but had been prevented by the unexpected labor which had devolved upon him as Chairman of the Committee on the alleged vacancy in Mr. MANIERRE's District.

The remainder of the Evening Session was consumed in the consideration of private bills.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Friday, March 4.

The Committees reported against abolishing the offices of Regent of the University and School Commissioner.

Also, against aid to the Brockport Collegiate Institute and the State Inebriate Asylum.

Also, against compelling country Banks to redeem their circulation at par in New-York.

The following bills were reported favorably:

To provide for the payment of the money due for the troops on Staten Island.

To construct locks and side cuts from the Lake Champlain Canal to the Hudson River.

To reëstablish the Board of Health in New-York.

To establish an Insurance Department.

The bill to authorize the continuation of a breakwater on the shores of Lake Erie was passed.

Mr. REILLY introduced a bill to amend the District Court act so as to lessen the costs in suits under fifteen dollars.

The Registry Law bill was taken up as the special order.

Mr. BROCKWAY offered a substitute, making the Inspectors of Election the Board of Canvassers.

Mr. C. S. SPENCER strongly opposed the substitute, and moved to order the original bill to a third reading. Lost.

Mr. C. S. SPENCER introduced a bill to expedite decisions in suits where the People are a party. Also, to prevent the adulteration of milk. Also, a bill in relation to the Croton Aqueduct Board.

Mr. GOVER introduced a bill for the payment of the lands purchased for the Cemetery in New-York.

Mr. SHAW introduced a bill to appoint Commissioners to settle all claims for or against the City of New-York.

The bill to prevent and punish prize-fighting was passed.

Mr. S. S. CHILDS introduced a bill to amend the Charter of New-York. It largely increases the powers of the Comptroller by creating the office of Deputy Comptroller and Bureaus of Taxes and Assessments, of Collection of Assessments, of Supplies, and for the payment of moneys on warrants; also makes an Executive department under the Comptroller, to be called the Street Department, for repairs of streets, &c.

The Assembly was engaged all the evening on private bills, in Committee of the Whole. Among others, the bill to incorporate the Mercantile Library of Brooklyn was ordered to a third reading.

THE MURDER AT COHOES.—ARREST OF THE MURDERER.—The man O'BRIAN, who murdered his wife, at Cohoes, N. Y., a day or two since, has been arrested. The testimony taken at the Coroner's inquest developed the following additional circumstances of the murder:

The murder was perpetrated before midnight, on Tuesday, March 1. O'BRIAN called at the house of Mrs. FITZSIMMONS, about 11 o'clock on Tuesday night, and told her that NELLY (the deceased) was dead. Mrs. F. inquired what was the matter, and O'BRIAN replied that she wanted a drink and he went and got a pail of water, and on his return gave her some, and afterwards went to speak to her and found her dead on the floor, and that he then raised her up and laid her on the bed. He asked Mrs. F. to go over to his house, and she declined. He went away and came back after a couple of hours, with two of his children who had been living away from home. At the request of these little girls, Mrs. F. consented to accompany them to the scene of the murder. On going in the front room she found a pool of blood on the floor, and the furniture lying scattered about the room, as if a violent struggle had taken place. Mrs. F. went into an adjoining bedroom, and there found the mutilated victim lying dead upon the bed, the blood streaming down over her face from the wounds which had been inflicted on her, and her clothing, the bedding, floor and walls awfully besmeared with blood. She passed into the front room again, and accused O'BRIAN of killing his wife. He replied, "I did not kill her—I whipped her last night, but not to-night." To any other remark by Mrs. F. he replied, "I have often whipped her as bad as that, and thought the devil couldn't kill her." O'BRIAN requested Mrs. F. to wash off the face of the corpse, but she declined, and he then did so himself. Mrs. F. and the two girls then went to a neighbor's, and on their return they found that the spots of blood on the wall in the bedroom had been mostly scraped off. O'BRIAN afterwards accompanied Mrs. F. home, and on leaving her said he was going back to his house. From that time until his arrest he was not seen (as far as evidence has been adduced) near the scene of the murder. He was arrested in East Troy, in a house in some alley. The hands, face, neck and head of the deceased, were marked and bruised in various places, as if by the heel of a boot or shoe. When the prisoner was arrested marks of blood were found in various places upon his shoes, which were immediately taken off and preserved by the officer. Upon comparing the nails in the heel of one shoe they were found to agree exactly in number, position and distance apart, with the indentations found upon the left arm.

Homeless Children.

A perusal of the Sixth Annual Report of the Children's Aid Society strengthens the conviction we have repeatedly expressed that, for the working of great practical and permanent good, this enterprise deserves the front rank among the reformatory movements of the day. Its efforts are directed towards a class from which spring mainly the great tides of wretchedness and crime, and its remedies are applied not to the surface of huge public evils, but to their root and source. It requires but little reflection to bring the mind to proper conclusions as to the future of these poor children who are born into poverty and vice—who, upon the first awakening of childish intelligence, find themselves surrounded by the infernal influences of the vilest passions of the vilest portion of humanity. Through tears, rags, dirt and cruelty, their innocent years unfold, having, as teachers, those skilled only in the practices of evil. What wonder that, with nothing but the examples of idleness, intemperance, theft, and kindred vices constantly before their eyes, they gradually harden in sin, and when years give their teaching its full development, become in turn themselves vagabonds, outcasts and criminals, and form the plague-spots in the community—the "ulcers of society?" The work of gathering and saving the children cast into such whirlpools of debasing influences, ought not to be considered the business, and left to the labors of a few individuals alone. Every Christian man and woman,—every person blessed with humane sympathies or cherishing a regard for the well-being of others—should take a warm interest in these labors, and Society should encourage and build up in imperishable strength an enterprise of such marked merit, involving results of such magnitude. It is, in a degree, responsible for the evils which overwhelm and crush the helpless, for, unlike the criminal adult, whose best of life is past,—whose self-respect has long since departed, and who has neither the power nor the wish to retrace his steps,—the solemn destiny of the child is before him; and, unconscious as he is of the mysteries bound up in that destiny, the great and oftentimes fearful results which the future bears to himself and to the world, it becomes an imperative duty with the community to place him, if possible, in a position which promises the best for both. This is the aim of the Children's Aid Society; and with the help which the benevolent have extended to it, the most encouraging and satisfactory results are on record. Thus, the statistics for the last few years show a decrease in the amount of crime among the young, which, remembering the increase in population, is a proof positive of the great work their labors have accomplished.

"In 1856 there were committed to the City Prison of girls under 16 years of age 282; in 1857 only 70, showing the surprising decrease of some 75 per cent. in one year.

"In 1856, of girls under 16 years there were committed for vagrancy 275; in 1857, 87, or a decrease of nearly 69 per cent. Of commitments at this age for petit larceny there were none, either in 1856 or 1857.

"Again, of young girls from 16 to 21, there were committed in 1856, 1,627; in 1857, 1,063. For petit larceny, at the same age, in 1856, 194; in 1857, 93. For vagrancy, in 1856, 639; in 1857, 550."

The smaller prisons show like encouraging results:

"In the Second District Prison, in 1856, 51 girls were committed for petit larceny; in 1857, 36. In the Third District, in 1856, 190 for vagrancy, against 157 in 1857.

"The returns for the year 1858 are not yet received."

During the past twelve months 750 children have been provided with comfortable homes through the direct agency of this Society. They go away sometimes in large numbers together, accompanied by their faithful and indefatigable friend, Mr. C. C. TRACY, the agent of the Society, who, with others, keeps a vigilant and constant care over the children after their settlement in their new homes. During the last Spring Mr. CHAS. L. BRACE, the Secretary of the Society, who is devoted heart and soul to the best interests of these unfortunate little ones, made an extended tour through the regions of the wide West, where during the operations of the Society, several thousand children have been located, for the purpose of judging from personal observation the progress of the children, and the actual results of the great work in which the Society is engaged; and he says:

"Wherever we went we found the children sitting at the same table with the families, going to school with the children, and every way treated as well as any other children. Some whom we had seen once in the most extreme misery, we beheld sitting clothed and clean, at hospitable tables, calling the employer 'Father,' loved by the happy circle, and apparently growing up with as good hopes and prospects as any children of the country."

While on this journey Mr. BRACE "visited personally and heard directly" of many hundreds of these little creatures, and the estimate formed was, that out of those sent to the West, not more than two per cent. have turned out badly, and even these were among the children of the more advanced age.

The surest test of the true greatness of a people is to be found in the condition of the humbler classes. Where these are neglected or carelessly considered by government or society itself, it proves the fact that such government is unsound at the core—is conducted on an unwise and insecure basis, and that its people are lacking in noble sympathies and truly Christian benevolence. It is expected of the strong that they should help the weak and lead them up to strength.

The exercise of charity is always blessed and beautiful, no matter how desperate the character and how hopeless the future of those upon whom its ministrations of love are bestowed. But kindness to children is so natural,—so spontaneous,—so irrepressible an impulse of every human heart, that it seems strange that vigorous and effective efforts for the deserted, homeless children of our City should have been so long delayed. Charity and Christian love have always stretched out their hands towards the outcast and the ripened felon; why has it been so long forgotten that it is easier as well as wiser to prevent a child from becoming a criminal than to reform him afterwards? Most strange is it that in a great Christian City like New-York, where there are so many thousand vagrant children, years and years have been allowed to pass, bringing destruction to these poor little ones, and nursing felons for the prison house and the gallows, without a single arm being stretched out for their relief. The originator of the Children's Aid Society, whoever he may be, deserves the best praises of the good and the blessings of mankind. It is the only remedy which reaches the root of the great evil of vagabondage and street crime, and does more to form character and lessen vice, through the happy system it has adopted of placing the children at once at a distance from evil companionship, in Christian families under the cheering influences of kindness, good example and industrious habits, than can ever be attained in large Asylums for the reclaiming of the young or the old. It is easier and it is better to prevent crime than to cure those whose lives have been crushed by it; and this Society has adopted the only effectual remedy for saving the children thrown from their very birth into its midst, viz. removing them while children from its contact.

MR. BRACE in a late address upon the Industrial School movement, in speaking of the statistics published for several years giving the number of truant and vagrant and uneducated children in New-York City, says:

"You have heard of 3,000 in a single Ward—the Ninth—of 2,000 in another—of thousands in another. You know that the estimate varies from 20,000 to 50,000. Now taking the lowest count there are 20,000 children habitually unschooled and growing up ignorant and vagabond. Whatever be the cause, here is the fact."

Twenty thousand children growing up rapidly toward a worthless, vicious life! Ruffians and street women in embryo! Does not this fact alone constitute a most tender appeal to the sympathies of the benevolent; and is it not a solemn and an affecting reproach to any Christian community, that there should exist in their very midst this numerous band of little wanderers, who, though found willing and eager sometimes to cling to the helping hands extended to them, are left in their utter helplessness to the dark future which awaits them, unless the noble few who compose the Children's Aid Society and their patrons come to their relief?

The great success attending the labors of this Society, together with the exposition of the fearful facts in relation to outcast children, have at length awakened the serious consideration of the public, and Industrial Schools, Boys' Lodging Houses and Girls' Lodging Houses, Boys' Meetings, and other efforts calculated to reach those of the young among the poor whose circumstances compel them to remain in the City, are extending their saving influences in every direction. These are admirable and necessary adjuncts, and will repay tenfold the unselfish devotedness of the noble men and women engaged in carrying them into practical effect.

These industrial schools have been established for the benefit of a class who generally do not, and cannot attend the public schools; the children of extremely poor or degraded parents, who cannot be induced to part with them. There are many inducements held out to such children to win their attendance at these schools. At noon they are furnished with a warm dinner, are provided with comfortable clothing, and have little singing-classes and other exercises to please and attract them. The gentleness and kindness of the ladies—volunteer teachers who go among poor children—have a wonderful influence over them, and in most of the schools the number of pupils is very large. The entire cost per annum for each child, including all expenses, is about $15. In some of the girls' schools they have "trade classes," where competent persons are employed to instruct the larger girls in tailoring, dress-making and other employments whereby they may be fitted for usefulness. There are even "housework classes."

The Newsboys' Lodging House has friends in every quarter where these bright, intelligent and jovial little peddlers are known. Mr. [illegible], the Superintendent, says:

"This lodging house is not restricted to newsboys. Match sellers, apple venders, button peddlers, in fact all who are engaged in petty pursuits, or who are out of work, are accommodated, if not too old or too vicious. Most of those who are regular lodgers would otherwise sleep in market houses, hay barges, old cellars, ash barrels, coal boxes, or walk the streets at night, and lounge in drinking saloons by day, or else pile in heaps at night, one boy keeping the other warm."

An evening school is regularly opened for the benefit of the boys in the house, and a prayer-meeting on the Sabbath. The number of boys who are provided with shelter in this house during the year exceeds 3,000. Each lodger pays eight cents for supper and accommodation for the night, and the late report states that the boys have paid into the treasury in this way about $800 a year, covering a little more than one-third of the expenses of the institution.

The boys have formed an association among themselves, which they have named the "Hard Times Society." The object of this body is to assist and encourage poor boys who are unfortunate in their speculations and their various pursuits, and "to feed the deserving hungry." They manage the funds themselves through an Executive Committee.

Another interesting feature in our charities are the "Boys' Meetings," now being established in different parts of the city. The object of these is to provide amusement as well as useful instruction, in warm, well-lighted rooms, for poor boys, and thus keep them out of low liquor shops and other vile haunts. They have been very successful; and an effort is being made to open a "Reading-room" on this plan in the Fourth Ward. There are a great many poor in this Ward, and hundreds of lads roam about at night in the low cellars and groggeries which abound there. The proposition set forth in the report is the following: "To procure a light, pleasant room, on a street where the throng of boys most collect, furnish it with papers and books—perhaps sell coffee as refreshment, and thus offer one temptation on the side of virtue where vice has her thousands." The report states that there are 430 grog shops in this Ward, to 22,000 population.

Thus the Children's Aid Society and others have yet an extensive work to do among the outcast young of this City. There are yet many, many thousands of them to be sought and saved.

To those numbers who could easily spare at least a little from their own abundant store, these little ones from their dark cellar ways and their chilly coal-boxes now make their appeal, more touching it seems to us, than that offered by all others among the wretched. To the generous, whose gifts have already been bestowed, a reading of the report of the Society's labors during the past year will prove a sufficient reward; but additional comfort is found in the words of One who loved little children, and who said: "He that doeth it unto the least of these doeth it unto Me."

One fact—less discreditable than it appears we trust—is mentioned in this report. The entire cost of saving over 4,000 of our street children from the fate that yawned before them, has been less than $60,000. Who can estimate the service rendered to society—the added security to life and property, the increased freedom from ruffianism and vice, the salvation of the sons and the daughters of wealth and respectability, by this small and judicious outlay? Yet none of it was contributed by the richest of our citizens,—whose stake is the deepest and whose interest should be the most profound in this movement. We feel confident that this can only be due to the fact that, in the various benevolent movements of the day, this one has to some extent escaped their notice.

Piccolomini Kissed by Mistake—What She Thought of It.

From the Cincinnati Inquirer, Feb. 28.

During PICCOLOMINI's late sojourn at the Spencer House, in this city, the following incident occurred through a mistake, as natural as it must have been agreeable.

A young gentleman, residing in the northern part of this State, received a letter, last week, from his sister, who had been attending school in Kentucky, stating that she would be, on a certain day, at the Spencer House, where two friends of hers were going, and she would look for him to arrive in good season and accompany her home.

The brother, ALFRED, came at once, for he had not seen his sister for nearly two years, having passed much of that time in New-York, and, on arriving at the hotel, asked for Miss ——, and the number of her room. Hoping to surprise her agreeably, he thought he would go up unannounced, having learned the floor and the position of the apartment. Just before he reached the room he saw his sister, as he supposed, coming out. She was small and plump, as when he saw her last, and he thought he would conceal himself behind the wall of the hall until she came opposite. He did so, and in another moment a pair of little feet were falling in pedal music upon the floor. She was within reach of him. It was she, of course, he thought, although the gathering shadows of the evening rendered objects somewhat indistinct. That little head with dark tresses, and humming of an air—always his sister's habit—made him confident. He would hesitate no longer; so he extended his arms, and clasping the diminutive figure before him, and bending down and imprinting three or four cordial kisses on one of the most delicious of mouths, he asked "Don't you know your brother, you little rogue?"

The "little rogue" looked blank with amazement, and then, muttering something very sweet but not intelligible, slipped out of his half-enclasping arms, and retreated in the direction she had come.

ALFRED now saw he must have made a mistake; and, as no one appeared, he went to the senior proprietor, to explain the awkward position in which he had been placed, having no desire to be compelled to be shot at, or be shot by, some genuine brother.

The Colonel, who was well acquainted with ALFRED, informed him that he had mistaken PICCOLOMINI for his sister.

For the first time the brother learned that the diminutive divinity was in the city, and immediately wrote her an apology, saying he could not regret what had occurred on his own account, but would, if she desired it, on hers. He had no idea he was pressing the Psychean lips of the loveliest and most fascinating songstress in the world, and that the mistake had only taken place because she was as beautiful as his sister. She had his most humble apology for what had occurred, and if she would not be satisfied he would return her what he had taken.

When this note was translated to the bewitching MARIE, and she was assured of its sincerity, she laughed immoderately, and said she had supposed perhaps kissing a pretty girl (here she looked very archly,) on meeting her, was an American custom. It had frightened her at first, but now she did not care, for, said she, in her attractive English Tuscan: "Ze keess deed me no 'narm—indeed it was not so dees—vat you say eet is?—dees-a-gra-ble."

THE COLCHESTER BANK CASE—THE EXAMINATION OF JONES POSTPONED.—On the 2d inst. the examination of JONES, the defaulting Cashier of the Colchester Bank, was postponed at Colchester for two weeks. Before the adjournment, Mr. SHARP, the book-keeper of the bank, was called to make a correction in his evidence given the day before. He had testified that no bills had been handed to him after his appointment as cashier, but he now testified that he found on the books an entry of 221 sheets. Justice LAMB ordered the prisoner to be kept in custody for appearance at that time. The officers took JONES back to the hotel, and returned with him to Norwich Wednesday afternoon.

Sentence of Death Upon Mrs. Hartung.

MRS. MARY HARTUNG, convicted at Troy of the murder of her husband, was refused a new trial on the 2d inst., and sentence of death was pronounced upon her. The Albany Evening Journal says:

"Mrs. HARTUNG was brought into Court soon after Judge HARRIS took his seat. She was dressed in a purple de laine dress, with a light plaid shawl, and wore a black velvet hat, a veil partially concealing her face. She looked pale and somewhat careworn, and when she took her seat behind the District-Attorney, burst into tears.

Notwithstanding no announcement had been made of the time that the Judge would pass sentence upon the unfortunate woman, the Court-room was crowded. Among the audience many were ladies.

District-Attorney COMSTOCK moved that the sentence of the law be pronounced against the prisoner at the Bar.

Judge HARRIS: "MARY HARTUNG, You have been brought into Court to receive final judgment upon your conviction of the crime of murder. Do you desire to say anything before that judgment is pronounced?"

For a while there was no response. Mrs. H. sobbing and weeping most piteously, her face buried in her hands. In about one minute she responded as follows:

"All I have to say is, that I am not guilty of the murder of my husband. I have said so before, and I say it again. This man REINEMAN, will confess it over my dead body!"

After an interval of a few seconds, Judge HARRIS addressed the prisoner as follows:

"I desire to say a few words to you before proceeding to perform the awful duty devolving on me. First of all I would have you feel that the judgment is just. I would have you dismiss all complaint of hardship, and to reconcile yourself to your fate. I will not intentionally say a word that shall add a single pang to your wretchedness. You have received the most heartfelt pity and commiseration. You have the pity and commiseration of all engaged in this trial. There is not one, I am persuaded, who feels the least unkindness towards you. But you must recollect that it is necessary, however painful it may be, that the murderer must lose his life, in order that the lives of others who do not offend may be saved. The law of God and the law of man alike command it; and if you feel it is hard, as I have no doubt you do, then remember how hard it was for that man, unoffending, to have that life taken from him. Remember the terrible agonies of that night, and, as I said before, endeavor to bring your feelings to believe that it is just.

"Another thing I would have you feel. I fear, very much fear, from the strong sympathy in your behalf, and the great efforts of your counsel, that strong hopes may be excited that you may escape. I entreat you to dismiss such hopes. There is but little chance, I assure you, for you to escape. This is dreadful—it is appalling, to one and so young, as you doomed to a certain and speedy death, and that, too, not by the allotment of Providence, but by the judgment of the law. Give up any hope, you may entertain, of escape. Suppose you could escape; suppose by any exercise of Executive clemency, this sentence should be commuted, and you sent to State Prison for life. What better would it be for you? I know, although branded with infamy as you now are, you could enjoy the presence and smiles of your family. In the gloomy retirement of a prison what would life be worth to you? Is it not as well die?

I know, and you know—you know better than I do—how illy prepared you are for that thing. It is not all of man to die; there is a life after death, and that life is unending. What a work you have to do in the short period left you! You have a soul, that will not die on the gallows! It will live forever, and let me assure you that man cannot save it. There is a Being who can save your soul. Go to the Saviour—your Saviour and my Saviour; confess your guilt, and seek forgiveness of that Saviour, whose mercies are boundless and who saved one and carried him into Paradise—a thief on the cross with him. Oh! do not neglect this advice. Seek forgiveness by repentance and faith.

The judgment of the Court is, that you, MARY HARTUNG, be confined in the county jail until the 27th of April next, and on that day, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 2 o'clock in the afternoon, you be hung by the neck until you are dead! And may God, in the fullness of His mercy, save your soul."

Immediately after this sentence was pronounced, the prisoner was removed from Court in charge of the Sheriff.

Judge HARRIS was much affected while addressing the prisoner, and at the close of his remarks could not restrain his feelings. Very many in the Court-room were moved to tears, as well they might have been, for it was one of the most affecting scenes we ever witnessed.

The Sickles Affair.

LETTER FROM THE HON. JOHN B. HASKIN—BURIAL OF MR. KEY'S REMAINS.

The following letter from the Hon. JOHN B. HASKIN appears in the Washington Star:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, March 3, 1859.

To the Editor of the Evening Star:

I find the following statement in your article of yesterday, upon the sad tragedy of Sunday last:

"The account of the killing of KEY, published in the NEW-YORK TIMES of Monday last, as can easily be proved on the trial, if necessary, was written and sent over the wires under the immediate supervision of MR. JOHN B. HASKIN, of New-York, the nearest friend of Mr. SICKLES."

You have been strangely misinformed. In the first place, my personal relations with Mr. SICKLES are not such as you have described. While I shall not desert my colleague in the hour of his deep distress, it is due to us both to say, that during the present session we have been very much estranged. It is not true that I revised or supervised the TIMES dispatch. Going into the telegraph office on Sunday night last, to send a dispatch to Mr. SICKLES' father—with whom I have been on friendly terms for years—the TIMES correspondent read to me the first few pages of his manuscript containing that part which had already been sent over the wires. The paragraph relating to Mr. BUTTERWORTH was not shown to me, and I saw it for the first time after its publication. You will be good enough to publish this correction, and oblige

JOHN B. HASKIN.

The Star says:

"Upon the arrival of the train bearing the corpse of Mr. KEY, at Baltimore, the cortege was met by a hearse, and the coffin being placed upon it, was driven to the burying-ground of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, corner of Fayette and Greene streets, where the body was deposited in the family vault. About two hundred of the friends and relatives of the deceased were present, and the service was concluded by the reading of the funeral service of the Episcopal Church, the Rev. CHARLES HOWARD and the Rev. Mr. HERR officiating."

Everett's Reminiscences of Hallam, the Historian.

At a recent meeting of the Massachusetts Historical Society, at which the death of the historian HALLAM was announced, EDWARD EVERETT delivered a eulogy on the distinguished historian, in which he made the following remarks:

"Having, while in England, been honored with the intimate acquaintance—I may venture to say the friendship—of Mr. HALLAM, and with his correspondence since my return, I am sure that you will indulge me for a few moments in an unstudied tribute to his memory.

* * * * *

It is owing, I am confident, in no small degree, to the gradually spreading influence of Mr. HALLAM's Constitutional History, that the the theoretical Toryism of former times has almost wholly disappeared in England. His work, I am inclined to think, is generally accepted as an accurate exposition of the true principles of the British Government. It has been often said, and never, to my knowledge, contradicted, that it was from this work, under the guidance of the late Lord MELBOURNE, that the present sovereign of England received her education in the constitution of the empire of which she was one day, with rare union of manly vigor and female gentleness, to wield the sceptre.

A striking instance of the wide range of his reading occurs to me at the moment. He was the first to point out the remarkable similarity between the celebrated passage on the Universality of Law, at the close of the first book in Hooker's Ecclesiastical Polity, with a passage in the now nearly-forgotten work of the Jesuit SUAREZ, De Legibus et Deo Legislatore.

In his personal history there is little to record. He was educated to the law, but never, I believe, went into court. He regarded his legal studies, however, as very important, as qualifying him to write the Constitutional History of England. He speaks with emphasis on HUME's deficiency in this respect; though treating his great predecessor with commendable impartiality, considering the decided antagonism of their particular views. In his family relations he was at once the happiest and unhappiest of men; the happiest, in being the father of two sons of the rarest endowments and brightest promise; unhappiest in being bereft of them on their entrance into life. ARTHUR died at the age of 22, and HENRY at the age of 26, leaving their poor father broken-hearted but for the hope of a reunion in a better world. HENRY it was my good fortune to become acquainted with, in 1843, at the room of our countryman, Mr. BRISTED, in Trinity College, Cambridge; and an interesting memoir of this most hopeful and amiable young man, from the pen of Mr. BRISTED, has been reprinted in England. One trait of noble feeling and sentiment has been related to me of him. When Sir ROBERT PEEL tendered to Mr. HALLAM the laudable title of baronet, he said he would be governed by his son's wishes. HENRY, on being consulted, said that, as far as his feelings were concerned, he was content to be known as the son of HENRY HALLAM—a name to which no title could give added dignity."

CAUSES OF INSANITY.—The annual report of the Pennsylvania State Lunatic Hospital (says the Philadelphia Ledger) brings some very useful facts to the notice of the public. It is a lamentable proof of the imperfect ideas we all have of civilization and proper mental cultivation, that in proportion as education and civilization are supposed to be progressing among us insanity is also on the increase.

Of the causes, out of 1,049 cases since the institution went into operation, only 568 have any recognized occasion. Of them, 105 have been from ill health; 127 from domestic trouble; (84 of these are females.) Religious excitement of all kinds, including Millerism and Spiritual Rappings, 11. How many for want of more religion it might be hard to guess. But intemperance 27, and opium-eating, and loss of money, and mortified pride, and politics, with other successes and immoralities, foot up about 55 more. There are over 400 single or widowed men insane to 219 married. With females, however, there are about as many married as single and widowed who are out of their minds.

As to the previous occupations of those who have become insane, we should have expected farmers and laborers to have furnished less than the average proportion, but, by taking in the weavers, the proportion is about kept up. Private asylums, no doubt, take off a large proportion of the insane belonging to the wealthier and more intellectual classes. Still there are, or have been, about twice as many students in the Insane Hospital as there ought to be according simply to the proportion of their numbers. The merchants, from the exciting nature of business, furnish more than the proper proportion very considerably. Thus, out of 12,000 merchants, 28 have been in the Hospital, while out of 21,000 carpenters but 12 have been there.

OBITUARY.

The telegraph announces the execution of Dr. Doy and his son, of Kansas, by a Missouri mob. The Albany Evening Journal says of the elder Doy: "Dr. Doy was for several years a citizen of Rochester. He was among the earliest emigrants from Western New-York to Kansas. He made a location near the present town of Lawrence, and has been pursuing the avocation of a farmer as industriously as was possible under the repeated invasions and disturbances of the Pro-Slavery ruffians from Missouri. He had succeeded in establishing a legal title to the lands he preempted; and, after struggling under embarrassments which would have discouraged many men, had secured a home for himself and family. In the frequent conflicts between the Free-State men and the Missouri invaders, he never disguised his position, but was an ardent friend of Freedom, and by pen, and voice, and vote, exercised considerable influence in securing the final victory. He was a frequent correspondent of the Rochester Democrat, and in every instance his statements respecting events in Kansas, though written when excitement was high, were confirmed by subsequent advices. There is reason to believe that he was as brave as he was enthusiastic in the cause of Freedom. He adhered unflinchingly to principle, and no temptation could for a moment make him swerve in his determination to oppose the introduction of Slavery in Kansas. The son was a young man of promise, and, doubtless, like his father, had incurred the hatred of the ruffians by his support of the cause of Freedom."

The Rev. James Carnahan, D.D., late President of Princeton College, died at Newark on the 3d of March, aged 84. He was a native of Pennsylvania, read theology under the Rev. Dr. McMillan, was for a time tutor in Princeton College, removed to this State in [illegible], and became pastor of a church in Utica. In 1823 was chosen President of the College of New-Jersey, and resigned in 1853, after a service of thirty years. He was in different capacities connected with the College for thirty-[illegible] years, viz.: two years as a student, two as a tutor, and thirty as President. He was one of the trustees of the College at the time of his death, and also President of the Board of Trustees of the Theological Seminary.

LAW REPORTS.

Decision in Equity.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—MARCH 3.

Judge INGERSOLL has sent down a decision in the following case, heard before him last month:

Solomon E. Ellithorpe vs. J. W. Robertson et al.—This was an application for a decree. Robertson was the only defendant on whom the subpoena was served, and he made default so that the bill was taken pro confesso against him.

The bill charged that the complainant in July, 1847, invented certain improvements in sewing machines, of which he made drawings preparatory to applying for a patent, but was delayed in so doing till April 10, 1858, for want of means; that the house where he supposed they were was burned down in August, 1848, and that he did not find them till less than six months before April 10, 1858, but having found them he on that day applied for a patent, deposited a model in the Patent Office, and paid the $30; that the Commissioner of Patents refused to grant him a patent, on the ground that his application interfered with a patent granted to the defendant Robertson on Nov. 28, 1854, and that he had abandoned his invention by his delay; that he appealed from this decision to the Assistant District Judge for the District of Columbia, who affirmed the decision; that Robertson's invention has never been put in use; and that the complainant never intended to abandon his invention. And the bill prayed that Robertson's patent might be declared void, and that the complainant be declared entitled to receive a patent for his invention.

Held, by the Court—That to defeat a patent which has been issued it is not enough that some one before the patentee conceived the idea of what the patentee accomplished. To constitute such a prior invention as will avoid a patent that has been granted, it must be made to appear that the prior inventor not only conceived the idea, but reduced his idea to practice. That the making of drawings is not such reducing the idea to practice.

That there being no allegation of fraud or improper practice on the part of Robertson in getting his patent, the complainant has not in his complaint made out such a case as will entitle him to the relief sought for.

That the bill therefore must be dismissed.

For complainant, Mr. Hadley.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.—MARCH 4.

Before Justice Ingraham.

The People vs. James Gordon Bennett.—Some time since, as will be well remembered, Mr. James G. Bennett was indicted by the Grand Jury of Westchester County for the publication of an article in the Herald, during June last, reflecting on Mr. John B. Haskin. The article charged Mr. Haskin with various acts of misconduct relative to the Willett's Point investigation.

In December last, on petition of Mr. Bennett, an order was made by the Special Term of the Supreme Court in this district, removing the indictment from Westchester County to the County of New-York. The order did not designate any Court in which the trial should be had. The order was made under the act of April 7, 1832, (3 R. S., 5th Ed.,) which provides that a defendant indicted for libel, on giving certain security, may "claim the right, by motion to the Supreme Court in the district where he resides, to be tried in the county where the libel was printed."

Mr. Pemberton, the District-Attorney for Westchester County, moved for an order designating the Court in which the trial should be had.

D. D. Field, Esq., in opposition to the motion, contended: 1. That the Supreme Court had no authority to interfere. The law must designate the Court in which the case is to be tried. Any order of the Court in the premises would be a nullity. 2. If the Court had authority it could not now interfere. It had already executed its function by making an order changing the place of trial to New-York County. If a designation of the Court could have been made, it should have been made then.

The Judge took the paper, reserving his decision.

Messrs. Pemberton and John Graham for the People; B. Galbraith and D. D. Field for defendant.

DECISIONS.

Susan Lammers vs. William Lammers.—Motion granted for $4 per week and $75 for counsel fees.

The Same vs. The Same.—Reference ordered to Henry E. Davies, Jr., Esq.

William C. Green et al. vs. John Roth et al.—Motion denied. Plaintiffs, costs $10, to abide event.

Ellen Beedman, Administratrix, &c. vs. Garet Mead et al.—Judgment for plaintiff and reference ordered to M. Ulshoeffer, Esq., to compute amount due.

Edward Pierrepont Executor, &c. vs. Mary G. Edwards, et al.—Order to be entered in accordance with the opinion.

FRIDAY, March 4—P. M.

The legislation of Congress on the revenue and finances of the Government finally resulted to-day as we had every reason to suppose three or four weeks ago it would result. There is no change made in the Tariff of 1857. There is no creation of New Loans. The Treasury Bills of 1858 are made renewable until June 30, 1860. The amount outstanding at any one time was not to exceed $20,000,000, and the rate of interest as under the original act not to exceed 6 ℔ cent. This provision, it is believed, will carry the Department over the next fiscal year, or at all events until the meeting of the new Congress next Winter. It was deemed of itself unreasonable by any party at Washington, though owing to the struggles made to connect the support of the Treasury with the revision of the Tariff, the authority, in its separate form, was not voted until the last hour. The measure is calculated to afford satisfaction to the financial public. It protects the Government against the contingency of embarrassment in meeting promptly a preëxisting obligation. It places such discretion with the Secretary in regard to the periods and installments of reissue as will enable him to moderate his Specie balances in the Sub-Treasury to save the largest amount of interest to the Government. And it will probably be the means of dispensing with a special session of the new Congress. In regard to the Tariff of 1857, which is left to a further practical trial of at least one year, we believe that the weight of opinion among the merchants in this City was against hasty and ill-digested legislation on a most important question at the heel of the short session, which has just terminated. Treasury Bills are firmer to-day, under the news of the adjournment of Congress, and the certainty that whatever rate of interest they may now bear, the holder will be sure of his money at maturity. An installment of nearly $5,000,000 will fall due in a few days, at the same time that the remainder of the Loan of 24th January—now about $4,000,000—will be paid in. It will be at the option of the holder of the Treasury Bills to present them at maturity or not, as the interest runs on until 60 days after notice from the Department that the Government desires to pay off the principal. The New Loan is also firmer, and sold up to 103¼ ℔ cent. So much of it has already gone out of first hands, that the remaining original holders have made their arrangements for a higher market either here or in Europe.

The Stock Exchange opened this morning rather tamely, and of this feeling there was a purpose shown by one or two parties to take advantage in pressing sales for the Bear account. But as the dealings advanced, and the adjournment of Congress, after providing for the support of the Treasury, became known, the market assumed considerable firmness, and ultimately closed higher than yesterday. New-York Central was done at 81½; Rock Island, at 63; Galena, 71½; Michigan Central, 53½, and Southern Preferred, 49. The business in Pacific Mail was partially influenced by the prospect early in the day of an extension of the contract with the Government for two years, but this was disappointed by the loss of the General Post-office Appropriation. The subsequent sales were at 77 ℔ cent., cash, and 76 seller 60 days. Panama was firmer, and sold at 117¾ ℔ cent. In Erie Securities, the Fourth Mortgage and Sinking Funds were higher, under the announcement that the Fourth Mortgage subscription is hereafter to assume new terms. The principal and coupons due of the unsecured Bonds are receivable for one-half; the other half to be paid in cash or the past due acceptances of the Company, of which very few remain outstanding. The overdue coupons and coupons to February, 1861, and the unsecured Bonds, which the holders desire to place in a new shape, will be subject to conversion into the Fifth Mortgages of the Company. The Convertibles of 1871 sold to-day at 36 ℔ cent. The shares are dull and neglected by the speculators. Illinois Central shares sold at 70; the Bonds at 89½. The general market left off steady.

The Money market is quiet and easy at yesterday's reduced figures for demand loans and at steady rates 5 to 7 ℔ cent., as in time, for mercantile bills, prime descriptions of which, outside of Bank, continued scarce, while the offering at Bank is scarcely equal to maturing obligations. The Exchange market closed firm for the Fulton sailing for Havre to-morrow. The ease and cheapness of Money renders the leading Bankers indifferent about drawing except at top rates, which are 109¾@109⅞ on London, and £5.12½ on Paris. The Fulton takes about $550,000 in Gold bars. The Sub-Treasury receipts to-day are $76,841; payments $161,945; balance $7,115,403.

The first new Bank in Michigan under the late General Law of the State has been established at Detroit, by Messrs. THOMPSON BROTHERS of this City with other parties in Western New-York, under the style of the State Bank of Michigan. The Bills are secured by State Stocks, and have been issued in denominations of one, two, three and five dollars in very beautiful style, and with special guard against alteration and counterfeiting.

The Newark Daily Advertiser of yesterday says:

"It is currently rumored that the New-Jersey Railroad Company has made a proposition to the Morris and Essex Railroad Company to take a lease of the latter road for a term from seven to ten years—the New-Jersey Company in consideration guaranteeing to pay all expenses of the road, the interest on the bonds, &c., and 7 ℔ cent. dividends to the stockholders. It is stated that a committee from the Board of Directors of each Company have agreed upon the preliminaries, which will be submitted to the annual meetings of the stockholders of each Company in June next."

All the above, CHRISTIE.

On Ninth-avenue, the southeast corner of Fifty-sixth-street, BURLING, $2,100; the two lots adjoining, LILLY, $1,375 and $1,200; the next, A. SHEFFIELD, $1,210; the next, over size, G. L. PALMER, $1,470.

The lot on the northeast corner of Ninth-avenue and Fifty-sixth-street, W. S. LIVINGSTON; $6,250. The lot adjoining, G. STEWARD; $1,450.

On the street a large number of gores was bought by R. W. LOCKE, at $600 each.

The lots, with water-right, Eleventh-avenue, Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh streets, were bought by Mr. APPLEBY, for $10,700.

Messrs. RAYNOR & BLACKWELL have sold 10 lots opposite Mount Morris, and corner of One Hundred and Twenty-first-street and Benson or New-avenue, as laid out on the latest New-York City maps; four of said lots front Mount Morris on said avenue, five on the street in the rear, and one adjoining, 58 feet front, running to a point, and 22 feet rear—making in all about 10½ lots, for $8,000.

Mr JOHN McCLAVE has sold one three-story and basement dwelling on north side of Forty-fifth-street, about midway of the block. Size of house 17x44 feet; lot, half the block in depth. Price, $6,000.

Also, one brick three-story dwelling on south side of Fortieth-street, about 100 feet east of Ninth-avenue. House, 16 feet 8 inches by 44 feet; lot, half the block in depth. Price, $4,300.

Mr. [illegible] twenty of 20 lots on south side of Seventy-third-street, between Third and Fourth avenues, at $1,300 per lot—$26,000.

GENERAL MARKETS.

NEW-YORK, Friday, March 4, 1859—6 P. M.

The reported receipts of the principal kinds of Produce, since our last, have been: 112 bbls. Ashes, 3,823 bbls. Flour, 1,816 bushels Oats, 432 bushels Malt, 1,541 pkgs. Provisions, and 130 bbls. Whisky.

ASHES—Are selling regularly, in lots, at $5 75 for Pots, and $5 87½ for Pearls, ℔ 100 lbs.

COFFEE—Has been quiet to-day, sales having been confined to 50 mats Java, on private terms; 100 bags Laguayra, at 11c.@12¼c.; 50 bags Maracaibo, at 11¾c.; and 200 bags St. Domingo, on private terms.

COTTON—Has been in good request, at buoyant rates. Sales, to-day, 2,500 bales, including Middling Uplands at 12¼c.@12⅜c.; do. Orleans at 12¾c.@12⅞c.; and other grades at proportionate figures, ℔ lb.

DYEWOODS—Continue quiet at previous figures.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market exhibits considerable activity, to-day, for State and Western Flour. Most holders are very firm, and are looking for even higher prices than those current yesterday. Sales have been reported since our last of 16,000 bbls.

Unsound State, ℔ bbl.	4 20 @ 4 90
Superfine State	5 45 @ 5 70
Extra State	5 90 @ 6 00
Superfine Western	5 55 @ 5 85
Fancy Ohio	5 90 @ 6 00
Extra Indiana and Michigan	6 50 @ 7 75
Extra Ohio	6 60 @ 7 75
Fancy Genesee	[illegible] @ 6 25
Extra Genesee	7 10 @ 8 75
Low to very choice Extra Missouri	[illegible]

Southern flour has been less freely dealt in, parties disagreeing about prices. Sales of 2,800 bbls., in lots, at $6 15@$6 60 for mixed and straight brands; and $6 65@$8 75 for low fancy to choice extra brands, ℔ bbl. Canadian Flour, Rye and Corn Meal are quiet at former quotations.

GRAIN—Wheat is more freely offered, to-day, at prices rather more favorable to purchasers, who are, consequently, buying extensively. Sales have been reported, since our last, of 60,000 bush., including fair ordinary to good White Western, at $1 50@$1 55; Red Western, (Winter,) at $1 40@$1 45; fair mixed Western, at $1 43; Milwaukee Club, at an unascertained price, and prime White Kentucky, at $1 75 ℔ bush. Corn is in good request at rising prices. Sales have been reported of 40,000 bush., chiefly at 86c. for sound old mixed Western in store; 85c.@90c. for ord. to good White and Yellow Jersey and Southern ℔ bush. Rye is moderately inquired for at 87c.@90c. ℔ bush. Receipts and stock quite light. Barley is in demand at unaltered rates, 70c.@90c. for poor to prime State ℔ bushel. Oats are pretty actively sought after at uniform quotations; Canada, 51c.@53½c.; Western, 60c.@62c.; State, 55c.@58c.; Jersey and Pennsylvania, 50c.@55c.; and Southern, 47c.@53c. ℔ bushel.

Mr. WM. G. CURTISS notices the week's movements in the principal kinds of Breadstuffs: The market for State and Western Flour has been very active for the past week, and prices have steadily advanced. The demand has been animated both from the regular trade and on speculation. Prices at the close indicate an advance of 20c.@30c. ℔ bbl. on the quotations given in our last. The transactions yesterday were to a fair extent, at a further slight advance, the market closing buoyantly. Southern Flour has been very active, closing firmly. The supply of Canadian Flour is quite limited, the demand has been good, and prices have advanced, closing firmly. The Wheat market has been active and buoyant during the past week, with a continued upward tendency in prices. The demand has been good, both from the home trade and from Albany, Troy and local millers, with a fair speculative inquiry. White Canada Wheat, of which there has been but little, has all disappeared from the market, whilst all descriptions of both Winter and Spring have been [illegible] at an advance of 5c. to 8c. ℔ bushel. Yesterday's transactions were to a fair extent, and the market firm at the close. Corn has been in better demand, and the market firmer."

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.
GRAND TESTIMONIAL CONCERT
to
MR. GEO. F. BRISTOW,
BY THE
NEW-YORK HARMONIC SOCIETY,
On MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 7, 1859,
for which occasion nearly all
THE LEADING ARTISTS
Of the City have generously volunteered their services,
among whom are the following:
MISS BRAINERD,
MADAME CARADORI,
MISS COLEMAN,
MRS. WESTERVELT,
MISS RHEMMIE,
MR. D. MIRANDA,
MR. PHILIP MAYER,
MR. JOSEPH BURKE,
MR. RICHARD HOFFMAN,
MR. H. C. TIMM,
MR. WM. MASON,
MR. APTOMMAS,
MR. A. NOLL,
MR. BRANNES,
THE NEW-YORK HARMONIC SOCIETY
AND
THE NEW-YORK PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY,
who will all participate in the performance.

As a classical musician and composer Mr. Geo. F. Bristow has long ranked among the highest in his profession. His claims to this position are recognized in Europe, where his symphonies have been repeatedly performed, an honor which has never been paid to any other AMERICAN COMPOSER.
One of these symphonies was composed by him at the early
AGE OF 21 YEARS,
and they have been successfully selected to form part of the programme of several of
JENNY LIND'S AND JULLIEN'S CONCERTS,
Both in this country and in Europe, and one of them will be played at their next concert by the
NEW-YORK PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.
His opera of
RIP VAN WINKLE
was given at Niblo's for THREE CONSECUTIVE WEEKS
with great success, by the Pyne and Harrison Opera Company, and is now about to be PRODUCED IN LONDON.
For several years past, Mr. Bristow has been conductor of the
NEW-YORK HARMONIC SOCIETY,
and by his untiring and indomitable perseverance, as well as his disinterested zeal and earnest devotion to the advancement of his art, has contributed greatly to the high position which that society has attained, and gained for himself the respect and esteem of all with whom he has been associated, both as A MAN AND AN ARTIST.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE GREAT BOOK OF THE DAY. JUST PUBLISHED BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co., PHILADELPHIA.
OPPORTUNITIES FOR INDUSTRY
AND
THE SAFE INVESTMENT OF CAPITAL; or,
A THOUSAND CHANCES TO MAKE MONEY.
PREFACED BY LETTERS
To a Victim of the Late Panic, on, Is Money Getting a Lost Art; How Fortunes were made in Ancient Times; How Fortunes have been made in Modern Times; How to Get the First Thousand Dollars which treats of How to Labor Profitably, and in what consists the Art of Economy. With an Appendix, containing VALUABLE SECRETS AND MANUFACTURING RECEIPTS,
Collected from Reliable Sources, and including some, that, it would have been sold, at various times, for considerable sums.
This unique book must not be judged by any other—it is the only one of the kind. Every one admits that some kinds of business are more profitable than others, and knows the importance of seizing the favorable opportunity; but no one, until now, has noted and commented on the various chances, schemes, projects and openings for those in want of a profitable business. The author—a gentleman of ability and a pleasing writer—has performed this most important service, citing chance after chance to make money, especially novel chances and new fields for adventure, in all parts of the world, and has made one of the most readable and interesting, as well as permanently valuable, books of the day. It is well worthy of being studied by every intelligent man who has his fortune yet to make.
One vol., large 12mo., 420 pp. $1 25.
The chapter, "How to Get the First Thousand Dollars," is alone worth ten times the price.

LEONARD & JACKSON'S
"PATENT LIGHTS."
A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.
Having been creditably informed that persons have on one or more occasions endeavored to injure our business by false and malicious statements to the effect that the vault light which we manufacture and sell is an infringement of letters patent granted to Mr. Thaddeus Hyatt, we hereby notify those persons to desist from such defamatory statements, as we shall hold them personally responsible for damages.
Letters patent for the vault light which we are manufacturing was granted June 29, 1858, and, should it be questioned, we are fully prepared to defend our rights in the premises, and to show that we are not infringing upon the rights of Mr. Hyatt or any one else.
JACKSON & THROCKMORTON,
Architectural and Nautical Iron Works,
Nos. 55 to 67 Goerck-st., New-York.

HYATT'S PATENT LIGHTS.
A CARD HAVING BEEN ISSUED TO THE PUBLIC
By parties who frankly confess that they do not pay me for my invention, I avail myself of this opportunity to advertise the names of those who do. The following persons, only, are licensed under my patents in this City:
George R. Jackson & Co.
J. B. & W. W. Cornell & Co.
S. B. Althause & Co.
Ingalls & Case.
Theodore Hyatt.
The law is, that a person who purchases or uses a patented article is equally liable for infringement with the maker of it. The "makers" having fairly notified the "users" of their intention not to pay, the "users" have only themselves to blame if I collect my tariff of them—as I shall certainly do. THADDEUS HYATT.

BOONTON PATENT MACHINE-MADE NUTS.—The subscribers are now manufacturing at their Works, Boonton, New-Jersey, WROUGHT IRON NUTS, upon E. H. COLE'S newly patented NUT MACHINES. In their manufacture the patented device of the "Double Punch," namely, two punches operating from opposite sides toward the centre of the Nut, forced into the body of the Nut most of the iron, which in all other processes is punched out; and also condenses the iron around the bolt hole, thus insuring the greatest strength in the Screw thread, and making, as they believe, a Nut superior to any made by hand, or the ordinary machine process.
They invite all consumers of WROUGHT IRON NUTS to make trial of them, and will furnish samples and their price list on application. FULLER, LORD & CO.,

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The R. M. steamship Europa, which left Liverpool on the 19th of February, for this port, with three day's later European advices, is now fully due. She had not been signaled at Sandy Hook at 2 o'clock this morning.

Congress continued in session until 12 o'clock yesterday noon, when it expired by limitation, after being constantly at work during the last sitting for about 25 hours. The disagreement between the Senate and the House relative to the increased postage question was not healed, and the Post-office Appropriation bill, and the Post-routes bill, in consequence, failed to become laws. All the other general appropriation bills passed, and received the signature of the President. It is yet uncertain whether the failure of the Post-office bill, which appropriates about twenty millions, will necessitate an extra session. The President is understood not yet to have made up his mind relative to the matter. The Miscellaneous Appropriation bill, as it passed both Houses, contains a section providing for the extension of the Treasury Note law for two years, and authorizing the issue of twenty millions. The necessity for an extra session, therefore, to insure sufficient revenue to meet the present necessities of the Government, does not exist. The Ocean Mail Service bill was killed, but an amendment to another bill provides an appropriation for carrying the mails to California via the Panama and the Tehuantepec routes. The close of the session was characterized by more dignity than has been used on similar occasions.

The Extra session of the Senate of the Thirty-sixth Congress commenced immediately after the adjournment of the Thirty-fifth Congress, in accordance with the President's proclamation. The new Senators were sworn in, soon after which the Senate adjourned until to-day, without doing any business.

The proceedings of the Legislature yesterday were interesting. In the Senate the bill to regulate the rates of wharfage in this City and Brooklyn was laid on the table, together with the accompanying report. The affairs of the Investigating Committees occupied pretty nearly the whole day, and a great part of the evening. A resolution was finally adopted discharging both Committees from further action—that on the Albany Bridge bill because it had accomplished nothing after being in operation fifteen days, and that on the charges made by Mr. O. B. Wheeler, because all the testimony of importance had been taken, and nothing had been found on which any action of the Senate would be proper. The report of the Special Committee appointed to investigate the affairs of the Metropolitan Police was presented by Mr. Spinola. It concludes with a declaration that the Metropolitan Police act was a piece of pernicious legislation; that the organization of the force was ill-advised and indefensible, and that the operations of the law have been onerous and burdensome to the people of New-York and Brooklyn, and prejudicial to the public interest. In the Assembly, after a variety of routine business, the Registry Law bill came up as the special order, and was lost on a motion to a third reading. Among the bills introduced was one to prevent the adulteration of milk. The bill to prevent and punish prize-fighting was passed. A bill to amend the Charter of New-York was introduced by Mr. S. S. Childs, which contemplates very important changes in the office of Comptroller, increasing his powers very materially. Private bills were considered during the evening session.

The Annual Commencement of the Medical Department of the New-York University was held last night at the large Chapel of the University, when the degree of Doctor of Medicine was conferred on 128 students, of whom 65 were from the Northern States and 63 from the Southern. Professor Draper delivered the valedictory. The Mott and Metcalfe prizes were awarded, and, by an innovation, courteously allowed by the Department, eight law students also received their degrees.

The Academy of Music was thronged last evening, to hear the Hon. Edward Everett deliver his oration on the character of Washington. Mr. E. was escorted to and from the Academy by the Seventy-first Regiment.

The Inspectors appointed to count the votes cast on Thursday by the Fire Department for twelve Assistant Engineers to officiate during the next three years, met last evening at No. 288 Bowery, at 10 o'clock P. M. The names of the successful candidates are published elsewhere in the Times of this morning. There was a large gathering, and considerable excitement over the result.

The investigation of the charge of corruption, in which the good name of many of the officers of the late Mayor's squad is involved, was continued by Commissioner Bowen, at the Police Head-quarters in Broome-street, yesterday.

Two Policemen, named Rackett and Mills were suspended yesterday by Deputy Superintendent, on a charge of obtaining $100 from two Vermont merchants by threats.

The mysterious jewelry case still remains unsolved, and the more the Policemen examine the affair the more complicated it becomes. Another owner turned up yesterday in the person of a man named Reig, who lies at the New-York Hospital, suffering from a broken arm.

The Cotton Market, yesterday, was quite firm, with sales of 3,500 bales. A lively inquiry prevailed for the principal kinds of Breadstuffs, and a fair demand for Provisions, Sugars, Molasses, Rosin, Spirits Turpentine, Whisky, Dry Codfish, Pickled Mackerel and North River Hay. Hides, Leather and Tobacco were more sought after. The freight engagements were moderate.

Presidential Amazement.

The President of the United States, if we are to take him at his word, is in a chronic state of surprise. He precisely reverses the mental condition of Mr. Micawber; for whereas that buoyant gentleman was constantly expecting something to turn up, in the case of Mr. Buchanan nothing that ever turns up is the thing that he expected.

The President was amazed when, after all his attempts to settle the Kansas question by thrusting it into the face of the country at every turn of our national politics, the Kansas question refused to be settled; but, on the contrary, flew at the throat of the Democratic Party, and threw the whole army of the White House into confusion. The President's attitude and language, in time of Senator Douglas' defection, were singularly like the attitude and language of the London Lord Mayor in the midst of the "Gordon Riots," who wrung his fat old hands in an agony of despair, and declared that he believed "folks turned Catholics o' purpose to vex and worrit him." The President could not possibly understand how it was that so many Northern Democrats kept leaving his lobbies and his halls to vote with the renegade of Illinois. The whole business took him "quite by surprise." Then again the President was amazed beyond measure at the remonstrances provoked by his Ostendible message in regard to the purchase of Cuba. He could not for the life of him see why Spain should object to parting with Cuba when he wanted to buy it. Nothing could be more clear, thought the President, than that the acquisition of Cuba would insure his own reelection to the Chief Magistracy of the Union. How could Spain interfere in such a promising scheme with her vexatious nonsense about prescriptive right, international law, the honor of Castile, and all sorts of irrelevant flummery. His unfortunate Excellency was quite as much bothered by this unlooked-for obstinacy and restiveness on the part of Spain, as his friend of the Herald, after abusing the private life and personal character of all sorts of innocent men and women for thirty years, is dumbfounded by a harmless allusion to scarlet, satin, or Wiesbaden. "What next?" is the uneasy thought of the one as of the other, whenever the slightest disposition is shown by anybody towards holding them to account for any act, or describing anything connected with their peculiar existence and special characteristics.

But the President has never been so completely thunder-struck as he has recently been by the neglect of Congress to provide for the business of Government, and by the non-ratification of the American treaty with Nicaragua. After occupying himself throughout the entire session most diligently and continually, in drawing off the attention of Congress from the national affairs to all sorts of rigmarole and fantasticalities, propounded by himself; after inciting the loose-tongued of either House to spend themselves night and day upon trivial party squibbles, or impracticable foreign chimeras, the President is now perfectly at a loss to know what all his men can have been about all this time. "Do you know," he cries, "that the Treasury is empty? Do you know we haven't a sixpence to bless ourselves with, and don't see where we are to look for one? Man alive, what do you mean by this shameful contempt of the 'Ways and Means?'" The President doubtless foresees that dreadful quart d'heure de Rabelais, in which his chef de cuisine, Gautier, will come knocking at the door of the Cabinet for the solid though inadequate remuneration due him for all the fine dinners he has served, confectionery inclusive. The President never thought of all these things through the long days of the riotous session. He supposed, of course, that somebody would look after all this—Toucey, or Cobb, or some of them. But they have all been looking after themselves, and now the poor President is forced to come empty-handed with his Beggar's Petition before the Bacchanalians of the Legislature, in their last uproarious moments.

The Nicaraguan consternation is not the least cruel, however, of all these blows. The President sent out to Central America, it is true, a Minister whom he knew to be wholly incompetent—and he has kept that Minister there although he knew his incompetence to be fast developing into something worthy of a harsher name. The President was quite aware that this wretched Envoy of his was to be left in the hands of those clever British diplomatists, Sir Gore and Lady Ouseley, and that if there was any mischief meant by England, England had the field quite to herself. But the President is not the less afflicted now, not the less "taken aback" on learning that his Ambassador has done nothing but raise the price of Old Jamaica, and that our own treaty lies "waiting its chances," while the treaty o England is signed and sealed. It is fortunate for the country that in this particular Nicaraguan bewilderment the President has no fears for our interests.

England, happily, means us no mischief in Central America, never has meant us any; and this Mr. Buchanan has known ever since the days of his legation in England in 1856. We have ourselves seen the evidence which proves that in the Summer of that year Mr. Buchanan was perfectly well satisfied that England was ready to accept the American interpretation of the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty. He did not mention this slight circumstance to Mr. Pierce's Government, because he did not care to hurt that nice little platform his Cincinnati friends were building for him, and because he wished to keep some pleasant work for himself to do, should he be elected. He was elected; his friends, Sir Gore and Lady Ouseley, came out to confirm what he already knew; he put the whole thing into their hands, laughing with them, at Washington and the Bedford Springs and other pleasant resorts, over the popular horror and fear of "British influence," and he has perfect confidence now that they will see the whole matter well and wisely arranged for the good of all concerned.

Still he must take leave to be amazed. And who would deny him that satisfaction? For, after all, this gradual education in mock amazements will be of use to our venerable ruler on that "day of wrath, that dreadful day," when the nominating Convention at Charleston shall administer to him a most real amazement by selecting his successor to the favor of the Democracy and the hope of the White House.

Standing upon Dignity.—Yesterday, while the session of Congress was drawing rapidly to its close, Senator Broderick became very indignant because a favorite measure had failed to pass; and to show his resentment he availed himself of his extreme rights and called for the reading of a very voluminous bill, avowing that it was his object to exhaust the remaining hours of the session and prevent any business from being done, because his bill had been rejected. Being a Senator distinguished for "firmness," he persevered in this action for an hour or two, until finally the unanimous remonstrances of the other Senators prevailed upon him to withdraw and allow the public business to proceed. Is this statesmanship, or only pig-headedness?

The Six Nations.

Mr. Seward will receive the thanks of all friends of justice and humanity for his successful resistance of the attempt made in the Senate on Thursday night to pass a bill removing the remains of the Confederated Iroquois of this State from their ancient seats to new and strange abodes in the far West. It was a barbarous proposition, uncalled for by any public necessity, and prompted solely by speculating avarice. There have been for many years unscrupulous white men regarding with greedy eyes the valuable lands of the Indians in Central and Western New-York, and monstrous frauds have been resorted to, without shame or remorse, to displace the remnants of the Six Nations from their reservations. These base efforts have hitherto been baffled. Disinterested gentlemen of the legal profession have volunteered their services in behalf of the red men, exposing in the courts with signal ability and success the villainy sought to be practised against them. It should be understood that these relics of a once powerful and most interesting Confederation are by means savages. They have comfortable dwellings, churches, school-houses, mills and cultivated farms. Many of them differ little in education, manners or intelligence from the majority of their white neighbors. Their leading men are accomplished gentlemen. The present Chief of the Six Nations, Mr. Ely S. Parker, a person of academical education and respectable character, is by profession a Civil Engineer, employed on the Canals of the State. Such are the people whom it has been proposed to drive away from their homes beyond the Mississippi. It is impossible that the Senate could have understood the real nature of the bill. Interested parties had no doubt taken pains to misrepresent and deceive. But Mr. Seward, with personal knowledge of the case in all its aspects, came to the rescue in a speech which would not be conquered.

The condition of the Indians in question, although comfortable and happy, is somewhat anomalous. With a creditable degree of general intelligence, and subject to the laws of the white community in the midst of which they dwell, they are neither regarded as citizens nor recognized as foreigners. Naturalization is forbidden them, and they can be endowed with the privileges of citizenship only by special act of the Legislature. But as an offset they are not taxed. On the other hand, they are incapacitated to alienate their lands without legislative permission. It would not be true to claim that, as a whole, they equal their white neighbors in industry, enterprise or progress. Their worst foe is the "fire water," to which the red man has everywhere a fatal proclivity, and which unprincipled whites are but too ready to furnish him. Some years ago an act was procured to be passed authorizing the Indian occupants of a reservation in Erie County to sell, provided a majority should consent. The speculators who stood ready to purchase induced the tribe to go to Buffalo for negotiation, where they plied the poor Indians with rum until, by hook or crook, a sufficient number were got to agree. This nefarious fraud was not, however, successful, its character being exposed, and its purpose defeated, after a severe struggle, by the friends of the Indians, who refused to remain inactive spectators of the swindle.

Judgments Against City Railroads—Rights of Passengers in Cities.

Two judgments have recently been rendered against City Railroad Corporations, at the suit of parties by whom severe injuries were sustained, in consequence of the carelessness or recklessness of agents or officers of the Companies. These cases will hereafter serve as precedents. The rulings of the Courts establish the principle that the Companies which control the lines of Railway within the City limits are legally subject to the same penalties for misconduct as those which are visited upon the management of longer lines of travel; and that under the General Railroad Law, which holds all alike responsible as common carriers, the party injured through any carelessness on the part of the agents of these Companies can find redress in the Courts. The law in such cases is clear. It is laid down in Duer's Reports that the agents, officers, or servants of a Corporation which undertakes to convey passengers in its public vehicles, for hire, are bound to use extraordinary care, foresight and diligence, in order that the lives of passengers may be protected; and that any dereliction from this standard of duty renders the Company responsible to the party injured in exact proportion to the nature and extent of the injury.

The cases recently decided confirm the justice of the ruling. In both instances, the plaintiffs sustained severe personal injuries, and exemplary damages were awarded. One of these suits, laid in the Court of Common Pleas, was brought by a father to recover damages for injuries to his son, a minor, received on the Second-avenue Railroad. The child, a boy seven years of age, was in the act of crossing the track in front of a car, when he was struck by the horses and run over. His arm was broken, and other injuries were inflicted. The plaintiff proved that the driver of the car was guilty of carelessness; that at the time of the accident, he was in conversation with a person standing upon the platform; and that the injuries to the child might have been prevented by the exercise of greater caution. The defence set up the plea that the lad was careless in attempting to cross the track when the car was approaching. The Jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, although it was proved that the sufferer was not at the time a passenger in charge of the Company. In this case the point was settled that the servants of a Railroad Company are under obligation to observe care and foresight, for the protection of life, even although no injury result to the immediate occupants of their vehicles of travel. The other case more distinctly establishes the liability of Railroad Companies for injuries resulting from the overcrowding of cars. The City Railroad Company of Brooklyn was sued by Mr. Alden Spooner for the recovery of $10,000 damages. In the Winter of 1855, Mr. Spooner took passage in a sleigh running in place of the cars of the Company, at a time when the track was covered with snow, and in consequence of the crowded condition of that vehicle, was compelled to take a position on the fender outside. The conductor received his fare, but a sudden turn threw Mr. Spooner from his feet, and prostrated him under the runners of the sleigh. By this accident, he sustained fracture of an arm and a leg, and was confined to his house for some months. Claiming damages from the Company, his complaint was met by the answer that his own carelessness in standing upon the fender was the cause of his injury; that the Company did not consider itself responsible for damages; and that no injury would have occurred had he occupied the seats usually assigned to passengers. It was, however, ruled that if the agents of the Company undertook to convey him as a passenger, and had received his fare, they were responsible for damages to his person, received while in their charge; and that, if he was received at all as a passenger, the Company were legally bound to provide him with proper accommodations to insure his comfort and safety. The plaintiff recovered a verdict of $5,000.

The rights of passengers on our City Railroads will be better understood after these decisions. It is evident that Courts and Juries agree in the necessity of holding our City Railroad Corporations to an accountability as strict as that which is exacted from the Directions of the great lines of travel. The reckless management of so many of our City Railroads, the continual overcrowding of the cars, the insufficient accommodation of the increasing travel on these lines, and the unwillingness of the Directions to acknowledge their responsibility to the public, call for rebukes as signal and effectual as those which the Courts have administered.

Bill for Equalizing Taxes.—Taxes constitute one of the most delicate and difficult subjects which can fall under legislative cognizance. The Legislature at Albany is laudably engaged in an attempt to comply with a recommendation of the Governor that some remedy be found for the present inequitable mode of making assessments. It is a work which, though confessedly necessary, touches sensitive interests and arouses selfish sentiments. If a just and acceptable bill can be passed, an excellent reform will have been achieved.

The inherent unpopularity of the tax-gatherer finds many illustrations. Just at present the Legislature is also engaged in passing a law extending the time for tax collection throughout the State. A general backwardness prevails among the people whenever the State's hat is passed, and every year there is great and widespread tardiness in making the necessary contribution. Another evidence of our national antipathy to being taxed, is the fact that only two or three of the professed free-traders in Congress can muster sufficient pluck to recommend direct taxation as the source of the Federal revenues. Most of the avowed opponents of Protection lack courage to go for Free-trade, pure and simple, involving, as it must, a direct resort to taxes. They go for what they call a revenue tariff, which means a tariff only moderately and partially protective. The time when the enemies of Protection will dare to oppose it, out and out, may possibly come. It is not yet.

"A Very Dear."—The "last word" is proverbially the privilege of scolds and slanderers, and we therefore gladly concede it to the Evening Post. That journal made its first stealthy allusion to the dreadful exposure it might make of the Times, were it only cruel enough to do so, under the reservation that in so doing it might "perhaps do injustice." This wholesome doubt, which in any honorable mind would have quenched the allusion itself, has apparently stifled the further development of the Post's mysterious menace.

It has now fallen into the coarse drivel of common impertinence, and savors strongly of the Eatonswill Independent in its attacks upon the Czar of Russia. The Times will, therefore, be as generous as the Czar, and spare its readers and itself any further consideration of its contemporary's childish personalities.

Parcere subjectis is a rule we should be sorry to infringe, and we have not the least disposition to deal with the Post as the Post deals with Mrs. Cunningham.

Boston Journalism.—The Boston Courier, in a business prospectus, states that since it went into the hands of its present owners its circulation has increased three-fold. Its managing editor is Mr. John Clark, and his principal writing assistants are Messrs. Geo. S. Hillard and Geo. Lunt. Both these gentlemen are scholars, men of thought and culture, and brilliant writers. The political opinions of the Courier are rigidly conservative, and as between existing political parties they are in the main Democratic. It is always well-written, and, so far as literary merit and general ability go, it is among the most creditable specimens of American journalism.

Mr. Everett's Lecture on Franklin.

New-York, Thursday, Feb. 3, 1859.

To the Hon. Edward Everett:

Dear Sir: We respectfully request that, if consistent with your engagements, you would favor our citizens, at an early day, with the address you have recently prepared upon the "Character of Franklin," and, if agreeable to you, under the auspices of the Mercantile Library Association of this City.

And one hundred others.

To this invitation Mr. Everett returns the following reply of acceptance:

Boston, Friday, Feb. 25, 1859.

Gentlemen: Your obliging communication, dated the 3d of February, was transmitted to me a day or two since. I shall have much pleasure, agreeably to your request, and under the auspices of the Mercantile Library Association of New-York, in delivering my recently prepared discourse on the subject of "Franklin," and the 9th of March will suit my convenience for that purpose.

I ought, perhaps, in accepting your kind invitation, to say that I have not attempted in this discourse to portray the life and services of Franklin. Reserving an effort of that kind for some future opportunity of greater leisure than it has been in my power at this time to command, and hoping, also, to find new materials for such a discussion in the lately recovered but not yet published papers of our renowned countrymen, I have confined myself, on this occasion, to those circumstances connected with his early years which admit of a separate treatment, which are closely connected with the formation of his character, and thus serve as an appropriate introduction to his illustrious career.

I remain, gentlemen, with the highest respect, very truly yours, EDWARD EVERETT.

"Hon. Charles King, President Columbia College; Hon. Daniel F. Tiemann, Mayor of the City of New-York; and the other gentlemen uniting in the invitation.

The Poem of Barton Key.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Had the late unlamented Key really produced the lines you are asked to accept as his, in this day's issue of your paper, he might be esteemed as even more of a poet than his father. The truth is, the verses are not translated from the Castilian of anybody, nor are they Key's. One Thomas Moore, whose name will be recognized as that of an Irish versifier, who lived subsequent to the Christian Era, and acquired some note as a writer of Anacreontics, is to be credited with the rhymes in question. That "a distinguished member of the New-York bar" should have treasured the gem as unique and genuine for so many years is rather surprising, considering the cheapness of this person, (Moore's,) works, and their commonness in every hand. You, as a live journalist, can hardly, perhaps, be expected to be so posted in amatory literature as to recognize and place, at sight, these saucy pretenders. ERIN.

New-York, March 2.

Correction.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

New-York, March 4, 1859.

Sir: In this morning's edition you publish the arrest of persons (for receiving stolen goods) at No. 190 Division-street, which is an error. By correcting the mistake you will much oblige the undersigned, who keeps a thread and needle store at No. 190 Division-street. ANN MARSTON.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

The Hon. Edward Everett's Oration on Washington.—An immense throng was in attendance at the Academy of Music last evening to hear the Hon. Edward Everett repeat his oration on the "Character of Washington." No sooner were the doors of the building thrown open than every eligible seat was occupied. At 7½ o'clock the Seventy-first Regiment was at the Everett House to escort the orator of the evening to the Academy. It was originally the plan for the Regiment to form a double line from the door down the main aisle of the building, through which Mr. Everett should pass to the stage, but the aisles were so crowded, notwithstanding the announcement that no more tickets would be sold than there were seats in the house, that this manner of proceeding was abandoned. The soldiery, instead, filed across the rear of the stage, Mr. Everett following. After spending a few moments in the retiring-room, he reappeared, escorted by Colonel Butterfield, Mayor Tiemann, the Hon. Luther Bradish and the Rev. S. I. Prime. The Regiment then reentered and took seats upon the stage. The Rev. Drs. Cox, Krebs and Owen, and C. W. Field, Esq., were among those on the platform. The Rev. Dr. Ferris offered an appropriate prayer, after which Governor Bradish made a few introductory remarks. Mr. Everett then came forward, and was greeted with overwhelming applause. He spoke first of the fact that the day was the seventieth anniversary of the formation of our Government. That was an event he said of importance unsurpassed. On the 4th of March, 70 years ago, the first session of the first Congress was appointed to convene in this City. After alluding to the circumstances with which the few delegates who responded to the call were surrounded, through the apathy and distrust of the people, Mr. Everett proceeded, by an easy transition, to the consideration of the character of the man for whom the 69 electoral votes for President were cast—George Washington. The preliminary proceedings occupied so much time that it was 8½ o'clock before Mr. Everett began the delivery of his oration. The immense audience—with the exception of thirsty ones among the soldiers, who were continually running to the pails of water on the rear of the stage—remained attentively listening to the last, now and then testifying their appreciation by the heartiest applause. The regiment then escorted Mr. Everett back to the hotel. Dodworth's Band, which furnished the music for the evening, played the Anvil Chorus and some national airs, and Mr. Everett made a few remarks from the balcony, thanking the regiment for the honor they had done him. He retired amid successive rounds of cheers.

Commencement of the Medical Department of the New-York University.—The large chapel of the University, in Washington-square, was, last night, crowded with an audience, anxious and brilliant. Brilliant were the ladies, anxious were the majority of the gentlemen. And yet, to tell the truth, many of the ladies were anxious also, being the mothers, sisters, or something else, of the gentlemen. The occasion which thus filled the chapel was the Commencement of the Medical Department of the New-York University, and the anxious portion of the gentlemen were there to receive their diplomas. Chancellor Ferris presided, august, as on all occasions. After reading a selected portion of the Scriptures, and offering prayer, the degree of Graduate of the University was conferred by him on 128 students 65 of whom were from the Northern States and 63 from the Southern. The Mott Prize Medals were awarded as follows: The Gold Medal to George K. Smith, of New-York; the Silver Medal to Luis Fernandez of New-York; and the Bronze Medal to Benjamin W. Sparks, of Georgia. The Metcalfe prizes were thus awarded: A valuable Microscope to Mr. Peter Bryce, of South Carolina; a case of post-mortem instruments to R. T. Hawthorn, of Alabama. Chancellor Ferris then announced that a novel circumstance would take place. By the courtesy of the Medical Department, the degree of Bachelor of Law would be conferred on the following gentlemen: Marcena M. Dickinson, Chauncey Field, Joseph C. Jackson, Asa S. Lathrop, Gilead B. Nash, J. Solis Ritterband, John Stevenson and Nelson Taylor. Professor Draper delivered the Valedictory Address. It was listened to with attention and welcomed with applause, but was too brief to be quite satisfactory. The Professor tempted his auditors with the expectation of something that they expected to be forthcoming, but which did not come. Nevertheless, his advice to the students realized the meaning of the Scriptural phrase: "Apples of gold in pictures of silver." After a benediction the audience dispersed, and, this morning, there are 128 new Doctors. May they earn the laurels they deserve and wear them well.

Banquet of the Metropolitan Club.—The first annual banquet of the Metropolitan Club—a political organization confessedly on the Fernando Wood side in City politics, and intensely Administration-wards, in a national point of view—was celebrated last night in the Astor-place Hotel. Mr. C. H. Brackett is President of the Club, though to Mr. Aaron H. Bean was assigned the honor of presiding at the banquet. The company was not numerous, by any means, but by the aid of a very handsome supper, a copious supply of Heidsick, a band of music, and an evident determination to be jovial, the time passed so rapidly that the gentlemen were surprised in the midst of their carousal by finding that the morning had advanced considerably. First in the order of proceedings—the supper being over—was the reading of letters from the Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, Senator Slidell, the Hon. John Cochrane, and the Hon. Amasa J. Parker. Then Mr. C. Edwards Lester eulogized Mr. Guthrie, expressed his confidence in the permanence of the Constitution of the United States, and declared that in the present chaos of principles the nominee of the Charleston Convention was sure to be elected. General Walbridge declared his firmest conviction in the perpetuation of the Union, and dwelt somewhat on the idea of Federal expansion. Other speeches were made, in which "The Gem of the Antilles," the Present Administration and James Buchanan, the Democracy of the Union, Municipal Rights and their gallant Defender, The Metropolis of the Continent, and The Ladies, were made the themes of elaborate remarks, the speakers being Messrs. C. O. Richards, C. H. Brackett, John A. Godfrey, Ed. Pierson, M. Dudley Bean, John Hays, D. M. O'Brien and J. A. Terry. The assemblage broke up with three cheers for the Metropolitan Union Club.

Another Mock Auction Swindle.—Sylvanus Starkwell, of Hinesburg, Va., yesterday complained to the Mayor that he went to the auction store, No. 1 Park-row, kept by Valentine R. Van Sicklen, and purchased a watch, represented to be gold, for $15. He gave a $20 gold piece in payment, which was kept by the auctioneer under pretence of making change. Then two persons came in, one of whom complained that he had been defrauded; the other, who pretended to be a jeweler, looked at Starkwell's watch and said it was brass. The auctioneer refused to pay the money back, but sold him a silver watch, which the jeweler said was worth $6 or $7. The watch was put up at auction and knocked down to the complainant at $20, who thought he could only save his money by buying it. The Mayor sent an officer to recover the money of the complainant. The auctioneers refused to pay over the money, but were afterwards arrested and taken before His Honor, and compelled to refund or lose their license. This brought them to a sense "of their condition," when they disgorged, and were allowed to go.

The Charity Ball at the Academy of Music.—The weather was outrageous, raging out of doors as only when the elements are obstreperous it can rage, and raging in doors by slamming shutters and causing concussions, which resulted in the breaking of panes of glass, when the time came for attending the Charity Ball on Thursday night. Still the ladies whose tickets were provided, and whose dresses were prepared, would go, and they went. The Academy was, as the phrase is, "appropriately decorated." The ladies, in defiance of the mingled snow and rain, were beautiful in appearance and adornments. The charity to be benefited by the dancing—the Hospital children and widows—will, it is to be trusted, never forget the occasion. From $8,000 to $10,000 in the sale of tickets and voluntary subscriptions, are said to have been realized.

Whig General Committee.—A regular meeting of this body was held last night at Thorp's, corner of Eighth-street and Broadway. The attendance was said to be inordinately large. There was much expression of opinion as to the prospects of the old Whig party in the approaching Presidential struggle, and serious discussion as to the most available mode in which that party could take advantage of the opportunities offered by the present dissensions in the ranks of the Democracy. Letters were read from many once prominent members of the Whig party, and a resolution was adopted to publish them in the principal City papers. There was a very extensive and equally indignant declaration of dissatisfaction with an article which appeared in the Tribune on Tuesday last, and the hope was indulged in that that journal would see the propriety of retracting its charges against the Committee. The remaining business was mainly formal.

Election of Assistant Fire Engineers.—The Inspectors appointed on Monday evening to count the votes which were cast on Thursday, by the Fire Department, for twelve Assistant Engineers, met last evening, at No. 288 Bowery, at 10 o'clock. The work of canvassing did not commence, however, until nearly 11. The returns from sixty-five companies rendered tolerably certain the election of the following persons for the three years to come: J. A. Cregier, Daniel Donovan, John Decker, John Brice, Wm. Hacket, E. W. Jacobs, P. N. Cornwell, Elisha Kingsland, John Cavanagh, Timothy L. West, John Baulch and G. J. Ruche. There was a large gathering of firemen in and about the hall, and considerable interest was manifested in the result.

Five Points House of Industry.—The Five Points House of Industry appeals to the public for aid to complete the payment on the land and buildings for its farm-school in Westchester County. The school is located in the town of East Chester, and is intended for the reception of vagrant boys, of whom [illegible] The sum of [illegible] is required to pay off the [illegible] bring the house into a suitable state of [illegible] for farming. Contributions may be sent to the Rev. L. M. Pease, at the Five Points, or to C. H. [illegible], No. 52 Broadway.

Colonization.—The Hon. J. H. B. Latrobe, President of the American Colonization Society, is expected to deliver an address on that subject at the Academy of Music, on the evening of the 16th inst. Mr. L. is well and widely known as a gentleman of ability, and he has probably given to the subject of this discourse as much attention as any other person who has ever written or spoken upon it. His address will be well worth hearing, from its general utility as well as from its bearing upon a most interesting and important subject.

Meeting of Furniture Carvers.—There was a large and quite a spirited meeting of the journeymen furniture carvers, at Steuben Hall, last evening, called for the purpose of securing an advance upon the present rates of wages. Twenty-five per cent. is the demand. Mr. Wm. Henry Baldwin was elected Chairman, and Mr. Smith, Secretary. A resolution was adopted appointing delegates from each shop to fix a tariff of rates, and report at a future meeting.

Balloons.—Six or eight balloons were observed to pass over the City between seven and nine o'clock last evening. They were sent up from the direction of Governor's Island, and passed over the City in a northwest direction.

Police Reports.

Charge of Highway Robbery Against Policemen.—On Thursday two merchants, who came from Vermont to purchase goods, visited Niblo's Theatre, and one of them tendered a $20 bill in payment for their tickets. The Treasurer of the Theatre took the bill, and after the men went in discovered the bill was counterfeit. He searched in the house for the man, whom he found, and the counterfeit money was replaced by good money. Shortly after the Treasurer of the theatre had settled with the merchants, two men came up and stated that they were police officers, and arrested the Vermont merchants and took them to a back room in a Broadway saloon and there searched them, and found on them about $300. The [illegible] their character, and [illegible] offered was taken in change in buying goods down town, but the two policemen commenced abusing them, said they were "Koniackers," (dealers in counterfeit money,) and that they should be sent to State Prison. The Vermonters now became frightened, reiterated their former statement and offered to do anything rather than be locked up. At last one of the officers said, "Perhaps it could be settled," and one of them counted out $100 from the roll of $300, handed the remaining $200 to the Vermont men and told them to clear out and never say anything about the transaction, or they would be sent to State Prison. The Vermonters did clear out that night, but went before Deputy Carpenter yesterday and made affidavits of the transaction. Two men named Rackett and Mills, of the "Broadway Squad," were recognized as the two men, and their shields were taken from them. Rackett and Mills admit they arrested the men, but deny taking the $100. The Police Commissioners will examine into the matter to-day.

The Mysterious Jewelry Case.—It appears that Worms, the man who called at the Fourth Ward Station-house on Thursday to claim the jewelry, brought with him an inventory written in a blank book, and which was evidently manufactured just before he came to the Station-house. He also said he had a partner lying sick at the New-York Hospital. The officers proceeded to the Hospital, where they found a man who gave the name of John Reig, and that he had his arm broken about three weeks ago by slipping down a pair of stairs at the "Constantine Hotel." Dr. Shrady states that the man has been at the Hospital for three weeks. Reig further says the property is worth about $5,000, (exactly what the newspapers stated,) and that Worms is not a partner but merely a clerk or peddler for him. Reig's account was very reluctantly given, and in cross-questioning him he was very contradictory. The case looks more mysterious the further the officers push their investigation. The property is now in the hands of the Property Clerk of the Police Department.

A Drunken Wife.—Mrs. Ellen Minor, residing at No. 275 East Thirteenth-street, made complaint at the Essex Market Police Court yesterday against her husband, James Minor, whom she charged with attempting to cut her throat. She exhibited an ugly gash on her neck as proof of her charge, and the husband was arrested. He stated that on going home Wednesday night he found his wife lying on the floor drunk, and bleeding from the neck. On examining a chair that stood near her, he found a nail protruding from its place, and covered with blood, and he supposes she must have fallen upon it, thereby causing the wound in her neck. The husband is in the employ of the Manhattan Gas Company, where it was proved he sustains a good character. He was accordingly discharged, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of his wife on a charge of perjury.

The Last Coroner's Inquest.—Coroner O'Keefe yesterday held an inquest upon two skeletons that were found by some workmen, ten feet under ground, while they were engaged digging a cellar at the corner of Mangin and Delancey streets. The skeletons were in a good state of preservation, and had apparently lain undisturbed for forty years or more. No evidence was forthcoming as to the causes which led to the deposit in that particular place of the ancestral bones, and the Jury very wisely concluded that two human beings, some time or other, came to their death from causes to the Jury unknown, and rendered a verdict accordingly.

A House-thief Captured.—A man, calling himself William Wallace, was detected yesterday in a room occupied by Mr. F. A. Horner, No. 454 Fourth-avenue, which he had entered by means of false keys. A Mrs. Underhill and daughter, who occupied an adjoining room, discovered the thief, and attempted to fasten him in the room, but he burst the door open, knocked them both down, and made his escape into the street. He was soon arrested and brought before Justice Kelly, of the Essex Market Police Court, who locked him up for trial.

Charge of Perjury.—A young man named Washington Van Zandt, employed in the Brooklyn Navy-yard, was yesterday arrested, on complaint of Mrs. Francis J. Minor, who charges him with having committed perjury in giving his testimony in a case before a referee, in which she was defendant. The prisoner was brought before Justice Connolly, and held to bail in the sum of $1,000 to answer the charge.

Arrested at Last.—John Rourk, a lad, who, it is alleged, stole $800 from his father at his native place, Hartford, Conn., last Summer, ran away and shipped in New-York for a sea voyage, was arrested in this City yesterday, having just returned from abroad. He was taken before the Mayor, who reprimanded him and directed that he should be detained until his father should arrive from Hartford.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

New School Building.—The Board of Education has recently completed a Public School building at the corner of Navy and Concord streets, No. 14, on the site of the former building of that number destroyed by fire something more than a year ago, when several children were suffocated, which was opened with appropriate exercises yesterday. The new building is constructed upon the same general plan as the one destroyed, with such additions and improvements in details as experience has suggested. It is brick, in the shape of an L, three stories high, extending 87 feet 6 inches each on Concord and Navy streets, with a width of 35 feet. Formerly the play-ground was under the main building, now it is in the rear, and the basement, which is 12 feet in the clear, is to be occupied by the Primary Department. The second story, which is 14 feet high, will be occupied by the Grammar Department; and the fourth story, 14 feet 6 inches high, will be occupied by the Normal School. In the construction of this building particular attention has been paid to ventilation and to affording means of escape in case of fire. There are already 893 scholars on the Register. The teachers are:

Grammar Department—C. W. Wolcott, Principal; Martha L. Wheeler, Sarah E. Brown, Hattie M. Coffin, Carrie T. Cushman, Jane A. Wright, Rebecca Le Compt, Ella M. Russell, Kate Hibbard, Harriet A. Bailey. Primary Department—Sarah W. Wheeler, Principal, assisted by Misses Amelia Beebe, Mattock, Rutherford, McGee, Smith and Baker.

Temperance.—A Juvenile Temperance Society was organized last evening in the Hanson-place Church. The attendance was large and the meeting spirited. There has been a general reorganizing of the temperance forces throughout Brooklyn during the last three months.

Political.—The Republican Primary meetings will be held on Tuesday evening next, and not on Monday as has been stated. The Convention to nominate candidates for Mayor, Comptroller, Treasurer, Auditor, &c. will meet on the 10th inst.

The Liquor-dealers.—Several liquor-dealers, indicted for selling liquor without license, were tried and convicted in the Court of Sessions yesterday, when the Court adjourned till next week.

Suspended.—The Fire Commissioners, Western District, at their last meeting, suspended for six months each Terrence Riley, of Engine Company No. 10, and Mortimer Ferris, of Engine Company No. 17.

Public Meeting.—That portion of the public opposed to the Water and Sewer acts, now before the Legislature, have called a public meeting, to be held in the City Hall on Thursday evening next.

The steamship Fulton, of the Havre line, came off the Sectional Dock to-day. She is advertised to sail tomorrow, (Saturday.)

CAPTAIN AND TWO MEN LOST AT SEA.—Capt. Baker, of schr. J. K. Baker, arrived to-day from St. Thomas, reports: The schr. Luther Child, of Dennis, Nickerson, from Philadelphia for Turk's Island, put into St. Thomas, about Feb. 7, having during a gale, lost overboard the captain. The mate, endeavoring to save the captain, lowered away a boat, and with one man jumped into the boat, which was immediately stove, and all three perished. She was supplied with a navigator from a brig, and taken to St. Thomas.

THE HURRICANE OF THE 20TH FEBRUARY.—Capt. J. B. Martin, of the schr. Nightingale, from Curacoa on the 11th ult., reports that when off Hatteras, on the 20th ult., he experienced a hurricane from the S. W., which continued 12 hours, changing at midnight to N. W. Such was the extreme violence of the wind that the gaff-topsails were blown entirely free of the gaskets; almost impossible for any one to keep footing on deck. A sea struck us on the labeard quarter, sweeping decks, carrying away galley, boats, lumber, spars, &c., and seriously injuring two men, breaking the thigh-bone of one, and much bruising the second; their names are Wm. Brown and John Walters—both belonging to Camden, New-Jersey. At the time of the accident there was a large bark in sight, apparently in distress, having lost her topmasts; after the squall, lost all sight of her, and the supposition was that she had foundered. Since then have been blown twice to the south of the Gulf. The schooner is much damaged in her upper works.

CUMBERLAND COAL AND IRON COMPANY.
Office corner of Broadway and Wall-st.,
New-York, Feb. 15, 1859.

With improved facilities for mining and transportation this Company is prepared to contract with consumers and dealers for a supply of CUMBERLAND COAL for the season.

Under the new organization the equipment of the Company has been put in the most complete condition, and the Railroad has been extended to the celebrated ASTOR MINE.

The Coal from this mine has always ranked as the best Steaming Coal brought from the Cumberland region, and for the use of locomotive engines and steamers is unequaled.

The Coal will be shipped from the Company's wharves at Alexandria, Va., and Baltimore, Md. When requested, the Company will take up vessels free of charge, the extent of their business enabling them to do so on the most favorable terms.
CHARLES GOULD, President,
DAVID PALMER, Vice-President.

GOLD MINES.
LEAVENWORTH CITY AND PIKE'S PEAK
EXPRESS AND PASSENGER LINE.

The above Company has been organized with ample capital. We connect with western lines at St. Louis, Mo., and at Leavenworth City, K. T. Our first coaches leave Leavenworth City on April 18. We propose starting two daily passenger coaches in addition to those that may be required for express goods. Through tickets, passing over our line, can be had at all the principal railroad ticket-offices in the east and north.

To obtain preference of seats, those holding tickets will be required to register at the Company's office in Leavenworth, taking preference according to such register.

We do not guarantee an arrival in any given number of days, but feel every confidence that the trip from Leavenworth city to our depôt in the mines, Denver City or its vicinity, will be made inside of twelve days, and, after the road is well established, hope to make the trip inside of ten days.

J. B. SIMPSON, Nos. 6 and 7 Nassau-st., Continental Bank Building, (Room No. 5,) New-York, is our General Agent, authorized to arrange for the sale of tickets, and also for express goods.

THE ROMANCE OF THE RING,
AND OTHER POEMS.
By JAMES NACK.
Extract from Preface, by Gen. Morris.
The Poetry of James Nack is characterized by a versification remarkably flowing, easy and musical; an unaffected and delicate diction, and a displayed tenderness of feeling, for which, indeed, he can justly considered the poet of the affections. His genius, talent and attainments, under circumstances peculiarly unpropitious, he is an intellectual wonder. * * * We are constantly reminded, in reading his productions, of Byron, which they resemble in their naturalness and fervor. For intensity, and all that gives to poetry its highest charms, these poems are certainly not surpassed, we think, not equaled by the earlier productions of Byron.

HUMPHREYS'
HOMŒOPATHIC REMEDIES.

[illegible]

NO. 562 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK.

JUST WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT.

We greet public and our lines [illegible] When a condition of things has become necessary, when a great public want is realized, either in the social, civil government or physics, that very want or demand is sure to create a supply. The hour will create the man, and the need the thing. Witness the sewing machine, the reaper, the telegraph. These may be crowded along. Many may not believe they are really here. Humanity will outlast, and the want is satisfied.

[illegible] of [illegible], of which they only know little, while the [illegible] be a knave. Nor will it be always a system so secret and obscure that only the priests of the temple can [illegible] its language, or interpret its symbols, or so dubious and equivocal that he who consults the priest [illegible] worse than he who enters the temple altogether. There must ere long be a system that comes down to the wants of humanity in every-day life, that meets the wants of the mother at her cradle, the nurse at the bedside, the father on his journey, or the sailor on the sea. Something, or some system, that everybody can have, and everybody can use, to arrest the first invasions of disease, and to restore the family when its [illegible] are visited and its forces undermined.

Old-school medicine, with its crude drugs and poisons, can never meet this want. That is a game long since played out, a thing well understood. Equally futile the vaunted panaceas and elixirs which [illegible] had [illegible] gotten and fully sustained. The water-cure can never be more than a doubtful expedient of useful palliative in the hands of the people. Nor can the usual form of Homœopathy, however large its domestic manual, or complete its assortment of tinctures and pellets, [illegible] anything more than amusing pastime in the hands of the people. The system was never designed for such use, and it can never fill such a place.

Does our system of SPECIFIC HOMŒOPATHIC REMEDIES meet this want? It becomes one to speak with modesty of his own productions; yet we but state the conviction of thousands who daily use them, and have long experienced their efficacy in a thousand varying conditions, when we say that they are just what the people want, economical, simple, prompt, reliable, and yet without danger in their use. For this they were designed and intended—to serve as the ready resource to the mother and nurse, to meet the wants of the house and fireside, as well as to be the companion of the traveler. To be, in fact, the great system of popular medication divested of all intricacies and technicality, and brought down to the common use and level of everyday life. For this end we have expended several years of labor and study, to say nothing of money, and in this aim we trust to succeed, a success of which any man may be proud.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

James H. Foster, Amityville, Long Island, writes:
AMITYVILLE, [illegible] 1858.

DR. HUMPHREYS—Dear Sir: I should be doing violence to my own feelings, as well as injustice to the community, did I withhold from you the great cures which your Specific Remedies are performing in this community. I have only had the agency of your valuable preparations a few days, and yet within the limited days I have cured three very bad cases of dysentery, each cured within twelve hours of commencing to take the remedies; in fact, the benefits were perceptible within one hour after commencing the use of the medicine; and so prompt and thorough was the cure that the persons hardly believed their own feelings. One very bad case of cough, of four months' standing, was entirely cured in a few days, and there has been no return whatever. Also one case of piles, of over 12 years' standing, was very much relieved [illegible] by simply taking your PILE SPECIFIC [illegible]

Our people are beginning to realize the difference between the drugging and sickness and the [illegible] the taking of your little sugar pills and [illegible] tion of health. Please send me [illegible] of your Remedies. Very respectfully, JAMES H. FOSTER.

Cyrus Marsh, [illegible], of Natchez, Miss., writes:

DR. HUMPHREYS—Dear Sir: The [illegible] Specific Remedies which you sent me from Utica [illegible] months ago, are all sold, and might have been sold sooner, had I given any particular attention to the subject. So far as I have learned, they have given satisfaction. I have used them [illegible] my own family with the most gratifying success, and would not be without them on any account. [illegible] draft, the amount of your previous invoice, and [illegible] to ship me, at [illegible], another [illegible] two dollar cases, and twenty-five [illegible] with directions, and for which I will remit on receipt of invoice. Truly yours, CYRUS MARSH.

From C. D. Mead.

[illegible] Co., N. Y., July [illegible], 1858.

DR. HUMPHREYS—Your Specifics are [illegible] [illegible] with specific to speak, in [illegible]

Neuralgia.—Mr. [illegible] [illegible] By taking less than one vial of [illegible] [illegible] of your FEVER PILLS [illegible]

Piles.—A middle-aged lady [illegible] of being cured by a physician whom is called skillful, [illegible] this complaint, was cured in a very short time, taking less than one box of your invaluable PILE PILLS.

Another.—Mr. R. B., of this place, who had [illegible] cured of an inveterate cough and cold, which threatened to end in a quick consumption, by the COUGH PILLS, had been suffering for a few weeks past severely with blind Piles, and was induced by me to try your PILE PILLS. His son told me last First Day that he experienced entire relief in forty-eight hours, to his complete astonishment and delight. I could fill a sheet and more in giving instances of the success of these remedies in cases of Coughs, Colds, Croup, Worms, Dyspepsia, Fever, and similar diseases. Thine Truly, C. D. MEAD.

From M. Huntington, Rochester, N. Y.

Prof. HUMPHREYS: I most cheerfully record my testimony of the use and value of your SPECIFIC HOMŒOPATHIC REMEDIES.

In the Autumn of 1856 I was suffering from a chronic diarrhœa, contracted on the Mississippi, and was also alarmed by symptoms of inflammation, so as to seek medical advice. A dose of calomel and rhei was prescribed. But in calling on the druggist, who was only an agent of your Remedies, and having seen favorable notices of them, I changed my course, purchased a case and commenced taking the DIARRHŒA PILLS, and subsequently the DYSENTERY PILLS, according to your directions. In a few days I found my complaint entirely subdued, and have had since very little trouble with the difficulty.

Subsequently, I had a young man attacked with violent dysentery, who first applied to a physician, but without success, when I procured him a box of your Dysentery Pills, which he used according to the directions in your little Manual, and was quite well and about again in three days.

A Mr. C., aged 32 years, was attacked the second time, with erysipelas, (crusty eruption,) the entire scalp being covered with blisters, was suffering extreme pain, with high fever and rapid inflammation, and was in a very critical condition. He took from my little case of your remedies, your SALT RHEUM PILLS according to your Manual, and in three days was able to attend to his business, became well, and has not had a return of the complaint since, now two years.

I have used other remedies of yours in cases not remarked, and have found them highly useful, especially the FEVER PILLS, which I consider invaluable.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1858.

COUNTRY RESIDENCES.

SEVERAL FURNISHED COUNTRY RESIdences to rent, from the 1st of April next, for seven months, for a year, or for a term of years. They are of medium size and in good order, situated in the township of Scarsdale, Westchester County, 17 or 18 miles from 27th-st., New-York, by either the Harlem or New-Haven Railroads, and from 1 to 2 miles east of the Scarsdale dépôt on the Harlem Railroad, and 2½ to 4 miles west of the Mamaroneck dépôt on the New-Haven Railroad, in a remarkably healthy, pleasant neighborhood. The subscriber only proposes to rent a small quantity of land with each house, embracing vegetable garden, grounds around the buildings, which are well supplied with shade and fruit trees, and stabling for horses and carriages. The houses contain on the first floor a parlor, dining-room and hall; second floor, 3 bed-rooms and hall, and a finished room in the attic, besides adjoining a kitchen, wash-room, milk-room and servants' room above. Cottage under main house. Rent $300, with the amount of land mentioned. If desired, a larger quantity of land may be had, as the houses are located on the Herdsdale Farms, which contain 450 acres of high rolling land, embracing distant and extensive views of Long Island Sound and the Palisades on the North River. It is the intention, from time to time, to build villas to rent as above, or sell villa sites varying in size from 25 to 50 acres, to persons who may wish to build—but in no other way will the land be disposed of. A map, with full description, can be seen daily at J. H. GIFFING'S Office, No. 5 Tryon Row, between 1 and 2 o'clock, where appointments may made to see the premises in company with the subscriber.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.—THE FOLLOWING correspondence has passed between the Hon. John B. Scoles and the Trustees of the Fire Department:

NEW-YORK, March 1, 1859.

GENTLEMEN—It has been suggested to me that a lecture upon the history and principles of the Federal Constitution would be very acceptable at the present time, when important questions are presenting themselves, and differences of opinion are entertained by those who are equally anxious to arrive at sound and truthful conclusions. It is a subject which I have reflected upon with no little interest.

I do not know a charitable fund I would sooner aid than that of the Fire Department of this City, nor a body of citizens before whom I would prefer delivering such a lecture. I will do so with pleasure, if it be your wish, at any time and place you may appoint. My subject will be The Birth and Development of the American Republic.

With great respect and esteem, I remain, yours, truly,
JOHN B. SCOLES.

Messrs. Zophar Mills, James Y. Watkins and Samuel B. Thomson, Committee of Trustees of the Fire Department.

NEW-YORK, March 2, 1859.

Hon. JOHN B. SCOLES—Dear Sir: Your favor of the 1st inst. is at hand. Your kind and liberal offer is with pleasure accepted. The lecture on The Birth and Development of the American Republic, a subject that is interesting to the whole community, will take place at the Cooper Institute on Monday evening, 14th inst., at 7½ o'clock. The price of tickets will be 25 cents each.

The expenditures from our charitable fund the past year were over thirty thousand dollars ($30,000.) The calls for aid are increasing; we, therefore, hope that this benefit will materially assist us in extending relief to the sick and afflicted firemen and to the widows and orphans of those that have departed this life. Respectfully, your obedient servants,

ZOPHAR MILLS, } Committee of Trustees
JAMES T. WATKINS, } of the New-York Fire
SAMUEL B. THOMSON, } Department Fund.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NOTICE TO TAX-PAYERS.—OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF TAXES AND ASSESSMENTS, No. 32 Chambers-st., New-York, Jan. 10, 1859.—Notice is hereby given that the Assessment Rolls of Real and Personal Estate in the City of New-York for the year 1859 are now open for public inspection, and will continue open until the 30th day of April next, inclusive. All tax-payers are earnestly requested to call and examine the same, in order that any errors in the assessments may be corrected. Also, all persons entitled by law to reduction of their assessments, by reason of being clergymen or for military services; and also literary and charitable institutions, by law exempt from taxation, are requested to make application for such reduction or exemption, previous to the closing of the rolls on said 30th day of April.

The following section of the act of April 16, 1857, is published for the information of tax-payers:

SEC. 12. During the time the books shall be open to public inspection, as hereinbefore provided, application may be made by any person, considering himself aggrieved by the assessed valuation of his real or personal estate, to have the same corrected. If such application be made in relation to the assessed valuation of real estate, it must be made in writing, stating the ground of objections thereto, and thereupon the Commissioners shall examine into the complaint, and if, in their judgment, the assessment is erroneous, they shall cause the same to be corrected. If such application be made in relation to the assessed valuation of personal estate, the applicant shall be examined under oath by the said Commissioners or any of them, and if, in their judgment, the assessment is erroneous, they shall cause the same to be corrected, and declare their decision thereon within thirty days after such application shall have been made to them. No reduction shall be made by the Board of Supervisors of any assessment on real or personal estate imposed under this act, unless it shall appear, under oath or affirmation, that the party aggrieved was unable to attend within the period prescribed for the correction of taxes, by reason of sickness or absence from the City.—Laws of 1857, page 500.

DR. RALPH INVITES THE ATTENTION of sufferers from stricture, in every stage, to his peculiar and eminently successful treatment. From long application and extended experience in this complaint, he can guarantee perfect and radical cures, without painful operations, nauseous medicines or troublesome restrictions. The sympathetic or distant symptoms of this disease are generally misunderstood. Pain or weakness in the back, bad memory, loss of mental energy and inaptitude for business or pleasure, genital debility, costiveness, dyspepsia, may all depend upon stricture as their hidden cause, long before it affects the urinary stream; and especially when there has been previous disease, such symptoms should lead to the question, whether this be their real cause. With its cure these symptoms quickly disappear. Offices No. 52 Bleecker-st., two blocks east of Broadway. Hours, 10½ to 2, and 6 till 9 o'clock. Letters in consultation addressed to Box No. 869 Post-office.

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—This delightful and positively [illegible] vigorant of the human system is fast superseding all other remedies; in fact, when its virtues become [illegible] known, it will be the only remedy in use. Its action on the nervous system and reproductive organs is most extraordinary, allaying all over-excitement, and infusing into the nervous organization that degree of tension which is requisite to give the human system the enjoyment of its full powers, both mentally and physically. As an appetizer it is equally remarkable; assimilated with the gastric juices of the stomach, it assists them in more readily dissolving all nutritious substances, and converting them into pure and wholesome blood; thus the digestion is improved, and the whole framework of man [illegible] on in a more vigorous and harmonious manner [illegible]. Price $3 per bottle, or two bottles for $5. Principal office No. 208 Fulton-st., New-York. DR. MAGNIN.

WATTS' NERVOUS ANTIDOTE—BY DR. STRATTON, is performing wonders, relieving and curing that agonising disease, neuralgia, with all its nervous affinities. For indigestion, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, nervous headache, and trembling of the nerves, this medicine has no equal. See that my name is on the label. Wholesale Agents, T. Bailey, druggist, Bible House, Astor-place; J. W. Smith, druggist, Court-st., corner Montague-place, Brooklyn. JAMES T. STRATTON, Proprietor, No. 111 6th-av. $1 a bottle. [illegible] to druggists. Circulars sent to order.

$500 REWARD—JEFFRIES' ANTIDOTE, A specific mixture for the cure of Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures and similar disorders. It makes a speedy cure without the least restriction of diet, drink, exposure or change in application to business. The desirable result is obtained in from two to ten days, and as it neither creates nausea nor offends the palate, and renders unnecessary all deviation in diet or interruption to usual pursuits, sound sleep or healthy digestion, the nuisance is thus removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure. Sold by C. H. RING, Agent, No. 178 Broadway, near John-st.

$500 REWARD—CROSSMAN'S SPECIFIC MIXTURE.—Of all remedies yet discovered, this is the most certain; it makes a speedy and permanent cure, without the least restriction in diet, drink or exposure, or change in application to business; many are cured in two days. Sold at the drug stores, No. 272 Broadway, cor. Chambers-st.; also at the Astor House, No. 221 Broadway; No. 106 Fulton-st., cor. William.

DR. HUNTER—NO. 3 DIVISION-ST. PERFORMS THE GREATEST CURES EVER MADE.
THE ONLY SECURITY AGAINST HUMBUGS AND THE EFFECTS OF DISEASES
IS TO APPLY TO HIS OLD
DISPENSARY, NO. 3 DIVISION-ST., NEW-YORK.
ESTABLISHED IN 1834.

Dr. HUNTER, No. 3 Division-st., offers to the public the only reliable remedy known for the wide world for the permanent cure and removal of every particle of the rank and poisonous virus of venereal disease, which is the genuine HUNTER'S RED DROP, made from the original recipe, in the possession of Dr. HUNTER, and not known by any other person living except Dr. HUNTER, at No. 3 Division-st., one door from the Bowery, all the assertions of the many poisonous quacks to the contrary notwithstanding. Dr. H. has prepared every vial of this celebrated medicine with his own hands that has ever been offered for sale for the last thirty years, and has never intrusted any living person with the secret; consequently, everything offered for sale at any other place is a libel, a base and wicked counterfeit, got up by some unprincipled wretch that, for the sake of a dollar, would trifle with the lives of his fellow-men.

THE GUNMAKER OF MOSCOW.

A Tale of the Empire under Peter the Great.

CHAPTER I.

The time at which we open our story is mid-Winter, and towards the close of the seventeenth century. Russia is the scene.

In the suburbs of Moscow, and very near the river Moskwa, stood an humble cot, which betrayed a neatness of arrangement and show of taste that more than made up for its smallness of size. Back of the cot was an artisan's shop, and other out-buildings. This shop was devoted to the manufacture of fire-arms mostly. Some swords, and other edged weapons were made here upon special application.

The master of this tenement was the hero of our tale, Ruric Nevel. We find him standing by his forge, watching the white smoke as it curled up towards the throat of the chimney. He was a young man, not over three-and-twenty, and possessed a frame of more than ordinary symmetry and muscular development. He was not large—not above a medium size—but a single glance at the swelling chest, the broad shoulders, and the sinewy ridges of the bare arms, told at once that he was master of great physical power. His father had been killed in the then late war with the Turks, and the son, leaving his mother with a sufficiency of sustenance, went to Spain soon after the bereavement. There he found work in the most noted armories; and now, well versed in the trade, he had returned to his native city to follow his calling, and support his mother.

Near by stood a boy—Paul Pospoff—a bright, intelligent lad, some fifteen years of age, who had bound himself to the gunmaker for the purpose of learning the art.

Claudia Nevel, Ruric's mother, was a noble-looking woman, and the light of her still handsome countenance was never brighter than when gazing upon her boy. She had a thankful, loving heart, and a prayerful, hopeful soul.

"It is snowing again, faster than ever," remarked Paul, as he took his seat at the supper-table in company with the others.

"Ah," returned Ruric, resting his knife a few moments, while he bent his ear to listen to the voice of the storm. "I had hoped it would snow no more for the present. The snow is deep enough now. And how it blows!"

"Never mind," spoke the dame, in a trustful, easy tone, "it must storm when it listeth, and we can only thank God that we have shelter, and pray for those who have none."

"Amen!" responded Ruric, fervently.

The meal was at length eaten, and the table set back, and shortly afterwards Paul retired to his bed. Ruric drew his chair close up to the fire-place, and leaning against the jam he bowed his head in absorbing thought. This had become a habit with him of late. His mother having observed these fits of abstraction, became uneasy, and pressed Ruric to tell her what it was over which he was so constantly and so moodily brooding. Being thus urged, Ruric confessed that it was of Rosalind Valdai (the orphan daughter of a nobleman, and now the ward of Olga, the powerful and haughty Duke of Tula) he was thinking. Ruric's father and the father of Rosalind had been comrades in arms in their youth, and their children had been playmates. But when the elder Nevel was slain in battle, Ruric was yet a boy, and the widow and her son remained poor and obscure; while Valdai, more fortunate, had risen to a high rank, and dying, left Rosalind a title and a fortune.

The young people, however, had not forgotten each other. Ruric loved Rosalind with all the fervor of his being, and he felt assured that Rosalind returned his love. As he and his mother sat debating the matter on that stormy night, a loud knock upon the outer door startled them.

"Is there any one here?" the gunmaker asked, as he opened the door, bowing his head and shielding his eyes from the driving snow with one hand.

"Yes," returned a voice from the Stygian darkness. "In God's name let me in, or I shall perish."

"Then follow quickly," said Ruric. "Here—give me your hand. There—now come."

The youth found the thickly gloved hand—gloved with the softest fur—and having led the invisible applicant into the hall he closed the door, and then led the way to the kitchen. Without speaking, Ruric turned and gazed upon the new-comer. The stranger, who was equally desirous of ascertaining what manner of man Ruric was, was a monk—and habited something like one of the Black monks of St. Michael. He was of medium height, and possessed a rotundity of person which was comical to behold.

At length, after warming himself at the fire, the guest asked if he could be accommodated with some sleeping-place, and being answered in the affirmative, Ruric showed him to a chamber and then retired himself.

The next morning, after breakfast, the Monk went with Ruric to his shop, and examined with much interest the various weapons therein. Ruric questioned him closely as to whether he had ever met him before, but the Monk replied evasively, and after saying that in case the gunmaker should ever, in any great emergency, need a friend, that he might apply to him, he took his leave.

Towards the middle of the afternoon, just as Ruric had finished tempering some parts of a gun-lock, the back door of his shop was opened, and two men entered. They were young men, dressed in costly furs, and both of them stout and good-looking. The gunmaker recognized them as the Count Conrad Damonoff and his friend Stephen Urzen.

"I think I speak with Ruric Nevel," said the Count, moving forward.

"You do," returned Ruric, not at all surprised by the visit, since people of all classes were in the habit of calling at his place to order arms.

"You are acquainted with the Lady Rosalind Valdai?" he said.

"I am," answered Ruric, now beginning to wonder.

"Well, Sir," resumed Damonoff, with much haughtiness, "perhaps my business can be quickly and satisfactorily settled. It is my desire to make the Lady Rosalind my wife."

Ruric Nevel started at these words, and he clasped his hands to hide their tremulousness. But he was not long debating upon an answer.

"And why have you come to me with this information, Sir?" he asked.

"Ruric Nevel, you shall not say that I did not make myself fully understood, and hence I will explain." The Count spoke this as speaks a man who feels that he is doing a very condescending thing, and in the same tone he proceeded: "The Lady Rosalind is of noble parentage and very wealthy. My own station and wealth are equal with hers. I love her, and must have her for my wife. I have been to see the noble Duke, her guardian, and he objects not to my suit. But he informed me that there was one impediment, and that was her love for you. He knows full well—as I know, and as all must know—that she could never become your wife; but yet he is anxious not to interfere too much against her inclinations. So a simple denial from you, to the effect that you can never claim her hand, is all that is necessary. I have a paper here all drawn up, and all that I require is simply your signature. Here—it is only a plain, simple avowal on your part that you have no hopes nor thoughts of seeking the hand of the lady in marriage."

As the Count spoke he drew a paper from the bosom of his marten doublet, and having opened it he handed it towards the gunmaker. But Ruric took it not. He drew back and gazed the visitor sternly in the face.

"Sir Count," he said, calmly and firmly, "you have plainly stated your proposition, and I will as plainly answer. I cannot sign the paper."

"Ha!" gasped Damonoff, in quick passion. "Do you refuse?"

"Most flatly."

"But you will sign it!" hissed Damonoff, turning pale with rage. "Here it is—sign! If you would live—sign!"

"Perhaps he cannot write," suggested Urzen, contemptuously.

"Then he may make his mark," rejoined the Count in the same contemptuous tone.

"It might not require much more urging to induce me to make my mark in a manner not at all agreeable to you, Sir," the youth returned, with his teeth set, and the dark veins upon his brow starting more plainly out. "Do you seek a quarrel with me?"

"Seek?—I seek what I will have. Will you sign?"

"Once more—No!"

"Then, by heavens, you shall know what it is to thwart such as me! How's that?"

As these words passed from the Count's lips in a low, hissing whisper, he aimed a blow with his fist at Ruric's head. The gunmaker had not dreamed of such a dastardly act, and he was not prepared for it. Yet he dodged it, and as the Count drew back Ruric dealt him a blow upon the brow that felled him to the floor like a dead ox.

"Beware, Stephen Urzen!" he whispered to the Count's companion, as that individual made a movement as though he would come forward. "I am not myself now, and you are safest where you are."

The man thus addressed viewed the gunmaker a few moments, and he seemed to conclude that he had better avoid a personal encounter.

Conrad Damonoff slowly rose to his feet, and gazed into his antagonist's face a few moments in silence. His own face was deathly pale, and his whole frame quivered.

"Ruric Nevel," he said, in a hissing, maddened tone, "you will hear from me. I can overlook your plebeian stock."

And with this he turned away.

"Paul," said the gunmaker, turning to his boy, after the men had gone, "not a word of this to my mother. Be sure."

On the following morning, as Ruric was preparing for breakfast, he saw Olga, the Duke, pass by, and strike off into the Borodino road. Now, thought he, is the time to call on Rosalind; and as soon as he had eaten his breakfast he prepared for the visit. He dressed well, and no man in Moscow had a nobler look when the dust of toil was removed from his brow and garb.

He took a horse and sledge, and started off for the Kremlin, within which the duke resided.

In one of the sumptuously furnished apartments of the palace of the Duke of Tula sat Rosalind Valdai. She was a beautiful girl; modeled in perfect form, with the full flush of health and vigor, and possessing a face of peculiar sweetness and intelligence. She was only nineteen years of age, and she had been ten years an orphan. There was nothing of the aristocrat in her look—nothing proud, nothing haughty; but gentleness and love were the true elements of her soul.

"How now, Zenobie?" asked Rosalind, as her waiting-maid entered.

"There is a gentleman below who would see you," the girl replied.

"Then tell him I cannot see him," said Rosalind, trembling.

"But it is Ruric Nevel, my mistress."

"Ruric!" exclaimed the fair maiden, starting up, while the rich blood mounted to her brow and temples. "O, I am glad he has come. My prayers are surely answered. Lead him hither, Zenobie."

The girl departed, and ere long afterwards Ruric entered the apartment. He walked quickly to where Rosalind had arisen to her feet, and taking one of her hands in both his own he pressed it to his lips. It was with difficulty he spoke. But the emotions of his soul became calm at length, and then he received Rosalind's promise that she would never permit her hand to be disposed of to another by the Duke of Tula. Ruric informed her of the visit of Count Damonoff to his shop, its purpose and the result. Rosalind was astonished and alarmed. Still, she could not believe that the Duke meant to bestow her hand upon Damonoff. The Duke owed him money, she said, and might perhaps be playing with the Count.

Ruric started as a new suspicion flashed upon him. Had the Duke sent Damonoff upon that mission on purpose to get him into a quarrel. "Aye," thought the youth to himself, "the Duke knows that I have taught the sword-play, and he knows that the Count would be no match for me. So he thinks in this subtle manner to make me an instrument for ridding him of a plague." But the youth was careful not to let Rosalind know of this. He thought she would be unhappy if she knew that a duel was likely to come off between himself and the Count.

After some minutes of comparative silence, Ruric took leave of Rosalind, and was soon in the open court. Here he entered his sledge, and then drove to the barracks in the Khitagorod, where he inquired for a young friend named Orsa, a lieutenant of the guard. The officer was quickly found, and as he met Ruric his salutation was warm and cordial. After the first friendly greetings had passed, Ruric remarked, "I may have a meeting with Conrad Count Damonoff. He has sought a quarrel—insulted me most grossly—aimed a blow at my head—and I knocked him down. You can judge as well as I what the result must be."

"Most assuredly he will challenge you," cried the officer, excitedly.

"So I think," resumed Ruric, calmly. "And now will you serve me in the event?"

"With pleasure."

And thereupon Ruric related all that had occurred at the time of the Count's visit to his shop, and then took his leave.

He reached home just as his mother was spreading the board for dinner. He often went away on business, and she thought not of asking him any questions.

On questioning Paul, in the shop, in the afternoon, Ruric, to his great surprise, learned that the Black Monk had been there during his absence, to purchase a dagger; that he had drawn out of the boy a minute account of the visit of Urzen and Damonoff, and that he seemed to be much pleased with Ruric's conduct. As they were talking, Urzen called and presented a challenge from the Count. Ruric at once referred him to his friend, and took his leave.

That evening, about 8 o'clock, a sledge drove up to Ruric's door, and young Orsa entered the house. He called Ruric aside, and informed him that the arrangements had all been made.

"Damonoff is in a hurry," he said, "and we have appointed the meeting at 10 o'clock to-morrow forenoon. It will take place at the bend of the river just beyond the Viska Hill."

"And the weapons?" asked Ruric.

"Swords," returned Orsa. "The Count will bring his own, and he gives you the privilege of selecting such an one as you choose."

"I thank you, Orsa, for your kindness thus far, and you may rest assured that I shall be prompt."

"Suppose I call here in the morning for you?" suggested the visitor.

"I should be pleased to have you do so," the gunmaker said; and thus it was arranged.

On the following morning Ruric was up betimes, and at the breakfast table not a word of the one all-absorbing theme was uttered. After the meal was finished the gunmaker went out to his shop, and took down from one of the closets a long leathern case, in which were two swords. They were Toledo blades, and of most exquisite workmanship and finish. Ruric took out the heaviest one, which was a two-edged weapon, with a cross hilt of heavily gilded metal. He placed the point upon the floor, and then, with all his weight he bent the blade till the pommel touched the point. The lithe steel sprang back to its place with a sharp clang, and the texture was not started. Then he struck the flat of the blade upon the anvil with great force. The ring was sharp and clear, and the weapon remained unharmed.

"By St. Michael," said the gunmaker to his boy, "Moscow does not contain another blade like that. Damascus never saw a better."

"I think you are right, my master," the boy returned, who had beheld the trial of the blade with unbounded admiration. "But," he added, "could you not temper a blade like that?"

"Perhaps, if I had the steel. But I have it not. The steel of these two blades came from India, and was originally in one weapon—a ponderous, two-handed affair, belonging to a Bengal chieftain. The metal possesses all the hardness of the finest razor, with the elasticity of the most subtle spring. My old master at Toledo gave me these as a memento. Were I to mention the sum of money he was once offered for the largest one, you would hardly credit it."

After this Ruric gave Paul a few directions about the work, promising to be back before night. Just then Orsa drove up to the door.

Ruric was all ready. His mother was in the kitchen. He went to her with a smile upon his face. He put his arms about her and drew her to his bosom.

"God bless you, my mother. I shall come back." He said this, and then he kissed her.

He dared stop to speak no more, but opened the door and passed out.

"Have you a good weapon?" asked Orsa, as the horse started on.

"I have," Ruric said quietly; "and one which has stood more tests than most swords will bear." And after some further remarks he related the peculiar circumstances attending the making of the sword, and his possession of it.

At length they struck upon the river, and in half an hour more they reached the appointed spot. The day was beautiful. They had been upon the ground but a few minutes when the other party came in sight around the bend of the river. The monk was there also.

As soon as the Count and his second and surgeon had arrived, and the horses had been secured, the Lieutenant proposed that they should repair to an old building which was close at hand.

"Aye," added Damonoff—"Let us have this business done, for I would be back to dinner. I dine with Olga to-day, and a fair maiden awaits my coming."

"Notice him not," whispered Orsa, who walked close by Ruric's side. "That is one of his chief points when engaged in an affair of this kind. He hopes to get you angry, and so unhinge your nerves."

"Never fear," answered the gunmaker.

The party halted when they reached the interior of the rough structure, and the Count threw off his pelisse and drew his sword. Ruric followed his example.

"Sir Count," the latter said, as he moved a step forward, "ere we commence this work I wish all present to understand distinctly how I stand. You have sought this quarrel from the first. Without the least provocation from me you have insulted me most grossly, and this is the climax. So, before God and man, be the result upon your own head."

"Out, lying knave——"

"Hold," cried the surgeon, laying his hand heavily upon the Count's arm. "You have no right to speak thus, for you lower yourself when you do it. If you have come to fight, do so honorably."

An angry reply was upon Damonoff's lips, but he did not speak it. He turned to his antagonist and said:

"Will you measure weapons, Sir? Mine may be a mite the longest. I seek no advantage; and I have one here of the same length and weight as my own, if you wish it."

"I am well satisfied as it is," replied Ruric.

"Then take your ground.——Are you ready?"

"I am!"

The two swords were crossed in an instant, with a clear, sharp clang.

The above is all of this story that will be published in our columns. We give this as a sample. The continuation of it from where it leaves off here can only be found in the New-York Ledger, the great family paper, for which the most popular writers in the country contribute, and which is for sale at all the stores throughout the city and country where papers are sold. Remember and ask for the New-York Ledger of March 10, and in it you will get the continuation of the story from where it leaves off here. If you cannot get a copy at any bookstore, the publisher of the Ledger will mail you a copy on the receipt of five cents.

The Ledger is mailed to subscribers at $2 a year, or two copies for $3. Address your letters to Robert Bonner, publisher, No. 44 Ann-street, New-York. It is the handsomest and best family paper in the country, elegantly illustrated, and characterized by a high moral tone. Its present circulation is over four hundred thousand copies, which is the best evidence we can give of its merits.

From the Portsmouth (N. H.) Daily Chronicle.

An advertisement of the New-York Ledger, in another column this morning, contains a list of the most celebrated contributors to the columns of that paper—which, taken together, probably cannot be excelled by the writers for any other publication in the land. Bonner knows how to get up a good paper as well as anybody, and knows how to interest the people in it better than most anybody else. His Ledger "foots up" more satisfactorily than most of the merchants of New-York, these hard times, and all on account of advertising, too. Why, he has spent $100 in this city of Portsmouth, within a fortnight, in advertising a four-cent weekly paper; a sum which it frightens most of our business men to spend in a year.

From the Corning (N. Y.) Democrat.

Bonner modestly calls himself the "Lamb leading the Lions," but his successful efforts in establishing the most popular and most interesting weekly, entitles him to the honor of being the Lion of Publishers.

From the Peoria (Ill.) Daily Messenger.

Bonner, of the New-York Ledger, as will be seen by his advertisement, seems determined to reign supreme in the realm of newspaperdom. The most successful journalists, as well as the best writers outside of journalism, are levied upon to help him onward in his march to empire, and when he has the literary world at his command, he will probably sigh, as did Alexander, for other worlds to conquer.

From the Cazenovia (N. Y.) Republican.

The New-York Ledger is continually furnishing new and substantial attractions for its tens of thousands of readers. We notice a series of capital articles, entitled "Thoughts as they Occur; by one who keeps his eyes and ears open," which are alone worth the price of the paper.

The Authorship of "New-Plymouth."

From the New-York Ledger.

There is a very natural and growing desire, on the part of the public, to learn the name of the author of "A true History of the Colony of New-Plymouth," now in course of publication in our columns. The following has an indirect bearing upon the subject:

The New-York Daily Times, in a recent notice of the Atlantic Monthly, maintains that there is an immense falling off in the productions of the "Professor" from those of the "Autocrat," in that magazine, and leaves the impression on the minds of its readers that Dr. Holmes is written out. We do not account for the lack of interest in the Professor's papers on such ground. Dr. Holmes is, unquestionably, a man of talent; but, if he give his best thoughts to the New-York Ledger, how can it be expected that he will maintain the former interest of his contributions to the Atlantic Monthly?

We copy this from the Philadelphia Inquirer of the 28th of February. More than a month previous to that date, we published the following card in the Tribune, which we thought had put this matter at rest. Did the Inquirer see this denial? If so, we think it is, to say the least, unkind on its part again to refer to the matter. In order, however, to dispose of this question finally and forever, we have concluded to publish the card which we addressed to the editor of the Tribune in our own columns. It is as follows:

MR. BONNER AND DR. HOLMES.

To the Editor of the New-York Tribune:

SIR: In your issue of this morning I find the following paragraph:

"It is stated that Dr. O. W. Holmes has refused an offer from Mr. Bonner of $5,000 to write half a column weekly for one year for the New-York Ledger."

This, I think, will be news to Dr. Holmes, as I know it is to me. It probably originated in a very bitter paragraph published in the Philadelphia Inquirer about the authorship of "A True History of the Colony of New-Plymouth," now in course of publication in the Ledger. The Philadelphia editor spitefully remarked that although this "History" contained some good "hits," yet that "sort of stuff," in his "humble estimation," had become "stale, flat and unprofitable;" and that "the Autocrat" and "the Professor" in the Atlantic Monthly were "part and parcel of the same thing." I have no wish, Sir, to encroach upon your space by entering into a controversy with the editor of the Inquirer; yet you will permit me to say that I have no doubt, if he be a fair and candid man, and will read two or three installments of that "History" carefully, he will not form so unfavorable an opinion of it. As to its authorship, I am not at liberty to say anything upon that point. Let it be judged on its own merits, unassociated with any name.

Respectfully, ROBERT BONNER.

From the Washington Daily Star.

THE NEW-YORK LEDGER.—Quite six thousand copies of the number of the New-York Ledger containing the first paper contributed to that journal by the Hon. Edward Everett, were sold in the city of Washington, and, if we are correctly informed, that figure represents its average circulation here at this time. We are not surprised at the fact, because it is really conducted with more tact and better taste than any other American weekly of its class. Mr. Bonner, its publisher, comprehends three essential things in the successful conduct of a popular publication. Thus, he is a capital judge of the style of composition to please the mass of American readers; he also knows well that a thousand dollars judiciously expended in advertising, invariably insures a return of at least two thousand dollars in the way of extra profits, in any business whatever; and he also is not afraid to pay lavishly to secure the services of popular writers, such as he announces in the advertisement of his Ledger, which will be found in to-day's Star.

From the Commercial Reporter.

THE HON. EDWARD EVERETT.

It excites our admiration to see the Hon. Edward Everett, the distinguished scholar, writer, statesman and orator adapting his style and matter in the "Mount Vernon Papers," to the innumerable readers of the New-York Ledger. His Mount Vernon papers are beautiful in their simplicity, while they gently lead the reader into fields of historic research and a higher order of thought and investigation. It is not every man who could well fill the pulpit in this vast cathedral of humanity and discourse through fifty-two Sabbaths in succession to a million of eager listeners. Mr. Everett has heretofore achieved renown among the scholars and statesmen and orators of the world. He now mingles with and instructs the masses of mankind, and is not too proud nor too fastidious to accept the level on which the common mind is most accessible. He has thus taught the scribes and priests of literature and religion a lesson which they would do well to profit by. If he lives to complete his work, he will embalm his name in the grateful memory of millions of American people.

From the Clarksville (Va.) Planter.

THE NEW-YORK LEDGER.—We believe that no man ever lived in the annals of time, whose career in newspaper enterprise has been so remarkable as that of Robert Bonner, the Editor and Proprietor of the New-York Ledger. Newspapers generally depend chiefly upon their advertising patronage for their pecuniary means. Mr. Bonner positively excludes all advertisements from his columns, and devotes his whole space to reading-matter. But while he does not permit others to use his columns to make themselves known to the world, he himself calls into requisition the Press of the whole country to keep the merits of the Ledger before the public eye. Mr. Bonner does nothing on a moderate scale. He advertises, not by lines or squares, but by columns and pages. Hence not unfrequently we find a whole page of the New-York Herald occupied with an advertisement of the Ledger. No man ever before lived in this country or the world, who dared venture on so grand and expensive a scale of advertising. No newspaper proprietor ever before paid $10,000 to one writer for a weekly contribution to his columns for a period of one year. This is what Mr. Bonner pays the Hon. Edward Everett for the Mount Vernon Papers. We may go further and say that no journalist probably in the world ever met with like success. The circulation of the Ledger is doubtless larger than that of any other newspaper in England or America.

And yet the editor studiously avoids the introduction into his columns of any matter which could offend the most fastidious moralist.

Altogether the Ledger is the best literary newspaper in the country, and we advise all who are disposed to take a newspaper of that description to try the Ledger.

From the New-York Evangelist.

ALARMING CAPTURE.—It is shrewdly guessed about the streets where editors most do congregate, that the Star contributor of the Independent has lately begun to shine in other quarters. Not to put too fine a point upon it, it is more than suspected that the man in Ann-street who lately carried off Edward Everett, by the payment of $10,000, and who was last seen going round the corner with Mr. Bennett, Mr. Greeley, and Mr. Raymond on his back, has just performed the same office for Henry Ward Beecher. Certain it is, that a series of articles has begun to appear in the Ledger, under the title of "Things as they Occur, by One who keeps his Eyes and Ears open," which are very racy of his style. One of them, "The Cannon Ball in the Hat," if not written by him, a Western man would say, "was never written by anybody else." The last number of the Christian Intelligencer runs a very amusing comparison between the two papers, showing how the Independent tries in a feeble way to imitate the advertisements of the Ledger, but giving to the latter the palm of enterprise and success. It closes with a very handsome compliment to the Ledger's moral tone.

From Elihu Burritt's Paper.

THE HAPPY FAMILY.—How many times, in London, we have stopped to contemplate a confraternity of owls, doves, weasels, rabbits, mice, cats, and other incongruous and antagonistic quadrupeds and bipeds, haired, feathered, bristled or quilled, all congregated in a little portable cage, under the name of the "Happy Family!" How marvelous was it to see a twittering Canary bird perched upon the head of the great white owl, and trying to open the heavy eyelids of the sage with its little bill and a funny, plump little mouse sporting with the whiskers of Señor Grimalkin! How young and old, who gazed at the sight, wondered by what amiable enchantment the master of the menagerie had been able to bring all these contrary dispositions and habits into such delightful complacency and fellowship! But Bonner has outdone this Rarey of beasts, birds and creeping, screeching things. He has caged a whole jungle of the most antagonistic editors in the United States, and made them perform as a "Happy Family" in his Ledger!

O, BONNER! What next? Have you any idea of stopping anywhere within hailing distance of common aspirations? To think of it! To speak of it! How it sounds! How it seems! Bennett, Greeley and Raymond, with their talons drawn, billing and cooing together over romantic sentiments within the latticework of the Ledger! Well, as honest Van Brunt would say, "something happens almost every year."

From the Pennsylvania Democrat.

THE NEW-YORK LEDGER.—This paper now, as is admitted by all, stands at the head of newspaperdom in the United States. Some persons think the Ledger is a dull and insipid affair, excepting the articles written by Hon. Edward Everett, but this is a great mistake. Whilst we read with pleasure the emanations from the classic pen of Everett, and highly appreciate them, there are other departments, and other writings in the Ledger that possess great merit, and that in our minds are not inferior to the productions of Mr. Everett. For instance, take the editorial articles in the No. for January 15, entitled, "What we are and are to be," and "Marrying on eight dollars a week." Also, the articles in the No. for February 5, entitled "Robert Burns," and "General and Personal." These do not come to us over a great name, but they certainly are from the pen of no ordinary writer. The same remarks will apply to the leading editorials in the No. for January 29. But it is needless to specify. The Ledger is decidedly the best paper extant, and its enterprising publisher justly deserves all the popularity it has acquired. We are now making up a club for it at this office, and those who desire to subscribe should make application at once. Subscription price $1 50.

From the Milwaukee Daily Sentinel.

BONNER NEVER LIES.—Cover up a side of your morning paper, if you choose, with an effort to bring the tide of popularity over your threshold—but in doing it deal in no Munchausen paragraphs of "unparalleled sacrifices," and "stupendous brilliancy," and "astounding success"—leave those phrases to the "gift enterprises"—their novelty is gone, and the public have learned to attribute them to other than honest sources. Bonner is recognized as the most brilliant example of advertising success of late years—but let us remember that Bonner never lies. When he tells you that Beriah Brown and Senator Seward will shake their literary hands in the next Ledger, (impossible as such a thing might appear,) you may expect it.

From the Kansas Chief.

In our advertising columns will be found the prospectus of the New-York Ledger. This paper has attained a world-wide renown, and the publisher is one of the most enterprising, go-ahead and liberal men that ever engaged in any business. He spends a princely fortune every year in advertising, and is making a fortune for himself by it. He has much of the best talent of America engaged exclusively upon the columns of the paper, thereby enabling him to make a paper in every way worthy of its immense patronage.

From the Schenectady, N. Y., Daily Star.

BONNER AGAIN.—The "Household Book of Poetry," by Charles A. Dana, has been successful enough to create a deal of dissatisfaction. Many of our best poets are not mentioned in it, while others, without fame, are honored with notice. Bonner proposes to get out a book warranted to satisfy all that Mr. Dana failed, and didn't fail to notice. We have no doubt the proposed work will be a success.

From the Lockport, N. Y., Daily Courier.

AMERICAN POETS.—Mr. Bonner, of the New-York Ledger, is about preparing a work of American Poetry, in which he intends to do justice to the merits of the American poets whose names Mr. Dana has willfully or negligently left out of his book entitled "Household Poetry." In the names enumerated by Bonner, as having been overlooked by Dana, and which he intends to eulogize, we do not notice that of our most gifted American poet, George D. Prentice. We hope Bonner has not overlooked his most popular contributor. We have looked in vain for his name among Dana's list, and have often wondered why his claims to the title of poet should have been ignored.

[Mr. Prentice has not been overlooked. Some of his poems will appear in our forthcoming Book of Poetry.—ED. LEDGER.]

From the Quebec Daily Gazette.

THE NEW-YORK LEDGER.—With such continued and well-directed catering for the intellectual gratification of its readers, we cease to become surprised at the immense circulation attained by the Ledger, or at its never-ceasing increase of readers.

From the St. Louis Daily Express.

The Ledger is now really a good journal, not only for those who read merely to be amused, but likewise for those who seek information and the gratification of a cultivated taste. Bonner having secured the attention of the people, has taken the proper steps towards elevating their tastes, as well as towards filling his own pockets.

From the Boston Journal.

LECTURE BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR., ON "THE REWARDS OF LIFE."—The tenth lecture of the course before the Mechanic Apprentices' Association was delivered in Tremont Temple, last evening, by Sylvanus Cobb, Jr. Subject—"The Rewards of Life."

Mr. Cobb, on being introduced to the audience, remarked that he was to speak upon a plain theme, and should use plain language. Few, he said, strove after the rewards of life. The mistake generally commenced with infancy, and was carried out through succeeding years. Was it not the case that children often had their duties turned into a commodity which they could barter for with their parents, and did they not generally know what was the price set upon these duties? The method of training up children by rewards for disobedience, and threats for disobedience, was spoken against very strongly. If parents in the last age, he said, had taken more pains to cultivate the inner life of their children, instead of in bestowing these physical rewards, society would not now have so many wrecks of life, picked up by the wayside for protection. The true course was described in detail, blending duties with rewards, and learning children to do right because it was right. The children of this age should be taught the true way of life, and if there is much around it that needs reforming, it must be taught the spirit of reform.

The man who could stand up, and devoutedly and understandingly say, "I am right," towered a whole stature above all the other forces of the earth.

The rewards of life were sure, and its punishments inevitable.

The lecturer then went on to speak of the moral and social rewards of life, which more fully and satisfactorily brought the lecturer into the hearts of his audience, never carrying the audience by storm, but winning frequent applause from the purity and justice of his sentiments.

From the Boston Atlas and Bee.

LECTURE BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.—Sylvanus Cobb, Jr., the chief story writer of the New-York Ledger, and whose name is familiar all over the continent, lectured last evening at the Tremont Temple on "The Rewards of Life." There was much curiosity to witness Mr. Bonner's right hand man, and a large audience was present. Mr. Cobb was honored with hearty applause. His lecture was a plain, practical "talk" on important matters of every-day life, and contained much good sense and sensible advice. Mr. Cobb is about 35 years of age, stout in person, has a high, commanding forehead, a quick, penetrating and playful eye, and a smooth, pleasant voice. He is a genial, whole-souled man, of kind heart and generous impulses. As a writer he can perform an amount of labor that would prostrate most men. He is a hard-working and most worthy man.

From the Baltimore Daily Patriot.

NEW-YORK LEDGER.—Perhaps no paper in the world has succeeded as well as the New-York Ledger, in so short a time. This is owing mainly to two things—the first, that it is a good paper, in the broadest sense of the term; and the second is, the immense advertising publicity given to it.

From the Clyde (N. Y.) Times.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.—There are men in this world, whom the more we hear and see of them, the more we admire. Among such men, Robert Bonner, of the New-York Ledger, demands the admiration of all who admire that talent and tact which commands success in business. The means he has used for the attainment of this success which astonishes the public, are such as but few men would dare to use; and the difficulties and responsibilities such as but few would dare to grapple with.

The first bold stroke which Mr. Bonner undertook, was the paying the monstrous price of $100 per column, for a story from the pen of Fanny Fern. Why he should do so, was a wonder to the gaping multitude, but to the man who could see a little further than his neighbors into business transactions, it was palpable enough. Fanny Fern's writings had just burst upon the people in all their simplicity and beauty, and had touched the hearts of thousands. A mystery likewise hung over her identity; and what with the charms which ever attaches to a mystery, and the yearning desire to read more from the pen of so touching a writer, and the additional anxiety to see the story for which an almost unknown editor could be so foolish (as they thought) to pay $100 a column; a demand was created for the Ledger far beyond the publisher's most sanguine expectations.

Another great aid to prosperity Mr. Bonner did not fail to invoke; that of the Country Press. We well recollect receiving a small slip of an advertisement, with a notice stating that if we would publish it twice we should receive an exchange. Mr. Bonner asked then no more than others before him, and do even now ask of editors; but unlike several, he was content with a moderate request, and required no more than about the price of his paper in work. His request was complied with by this paper, as well as by many others. We received the Ledger in exchange; and we may add, unlike his cotemporaries, he never forgot his friends; for, as regards this office, the Ledger has been received regularly in exchange ever since, notwithstanding Mr. Bonner pays us a considerable sum for advertising for him at occasional periods.

No sooner had the $100-a-column story become to be common-place, than the reading public were again astonished by the announcement of new contributors of considerable merit, who were engaged to write solely for the Ledger. Here was another new feature—something that had never been attempted before; and, what was more, the stories were to be copyrighted—would not be published in book-form—could not be stolen by rival publishers—they must be read in the Ledger or not at all.

Then commenced the giant scheme of advertising, which has made Bonner the noted man that he is, and his paper the pride of the home circle. Whole pages of the New-York Tribune, Herald and Times, were filled with first installments of every new story in the Ledger, and then when the reader became interested in the plot, he would find that "the remainder of this story will be found only in the New-York Ledger," etc. These portions of stories were thus advertised in those papers at enormous prices, indeed figuring up to hundreds of dollars per day in each paper. "Why," said the public, "the man must be mad!" Still they must read his paper—and that was what he wanted.

Soon came another change. More popular and noted writers were exclusively engaged. The style of advertising was changed. The installments of stories were lessened; but the same space, and sometimes more, at the same enormous cost was occupied by advertisements containing nothing but a reiteration of a few words. Everything new attracts attention, and so did this system of advertising. Then Bonner got up another reiterating advertisement, in the shape of a chess-board. Then by that time, he began to think he had reached pretty nearly all the readers of the New-York dailies, and commenced to make his name, stories and style of advertising familiar to the readers of our inland city dailies; then to the patrons of the country weeklies, until there is hardly a family unacquainted with the Ledger or its publisher. Still he does not drop one of the main levers of his fame, (advertising,) but keeps his name, his paper, and his doings before the people in a more modest way; still, perhaps, we shall find his genius in the advertising line cropping out where least expected, and in a manner to still more incite the people to become better acquainted with him.

Again were the public wonder-struck by the announcement that $10,000 had been given by Mr. Bonner to the Mount Vernon Association, on condition that the Hon. Edward Everett would write weekly during a year, for the Ledger. The price astonished the public. The idea of such a noted man writing for the Ledger astonished everybody, and those who never read that paper now did so for the sake of perusing the writings of Everett.

But "wonders will never cease." We this week are surprised by poetry from Bennett, of the New-York Herald, an article each from Greeley and Raymond; and still more taken aback with the announcement that a member of the great periodical house of Ross, Jones & Tousey, is about to proceed to London, to establish an agency there for the sale of the New-York Ledger. Then will whole columns of the "Thunderer" be filled with Ledger advertisements; then will Dickens, Thackeray, Sir E. B. Lytton, Mary Howitt, and all such stars in the literary firmament be paid to shine in the Ledger alone, to the delight of all its readers. We should not be surprised if Prince Albert was engaged to write for the Ledger; the Queen Victoria also to furnish a series of articles on her much admired system of home government, for the edification of mothers. The young sailor Prince, too, might furnish a series of nautical experiences; and if Bonner but lives to a good old age, we see no end to his enterprise. There is France with all her galaxy of literature. The Ledger in French, with Dumas and Prince Napoleon for leading contributors, would not be extraordinary for us; for, to tell the truth, we should not be surprised at anything the New-York Ledger may accomplish or undertake.

There is an example in the rapid advancement of Mr. Bonner to prosperity, and of the Ledger to public favor, which may be taken as a guide by every business man. The means of his success have been liberal advertising, and making the commodity offered for sale of intrinsic value, and always of the same worth, unless it be varied with improvement. Many people have tried advertising; they keep good articles; they have gained a great run of custom; then they cease keeping such good articles; their custom lessens; then they discontinue advertising; their custom falls off more rapidly; still they persist in their neglect of the main levers of business, and eventually they are ruled out by more enterprising men. It should always be remembered that the two great levers of business are advertising and honorable dealing.

The First Epistle of "Samuel the Scribe" Unto the Ledgerians.

From the Philadelphia Press.

CHAPTER I.

1. Listen, O Ledgerians! unto the counsel of "Samuel the Scribe," for his pen is that of a ready writer, and from his words ye may learn wisdom. Yea, verily.

2. And it came to pass in the reign of Franklin, whose surname is Pierce, that there tarried in the land of Gotham a modest man!!

3. Now, this modest man was a disciple of Faust, and he yearned not for the flesh-pots of Egypt, but for the root of all evil.

4. And he said unto himself, I will straightway abandon the "stick" and "case," and make for myself fame and fortune.

5. And immediately there was great rejoicing throughout the land, for the New-York Ledger had been strewn broadcast among the inhabitants thereof.

6. Now, Robert, whose surname is Bonner, said unto himself, This thing pleases me mightily, and henceforth the Ledger shall find an abiding place in every nook and corner of the land, even in the isles of the ocean.

7. And immediately there was gathered into the fold of Robert, whose surname is Bonner, the literati of the land.

8. Fanny, the fascinating; Sylvanus, whose surname is Cobb; Lydia, Alice, Emma, Phœbe; Emerson, whose surname is Bennett; William, Thomas, and George, the mighty Poet of the West, all did write for the New-York Ledger.

9. And Robert rejoiced with exceeding great joy, for his pockets were filled with shekels, and the Ledger circulated freely; yea, prodigiously.

CHAPTER II.

1. And it came to pass in the reign of James, the Bachelor, that the maids and matrons of the land, and Edward, whose surname is Everett, did counsel one with the other concerning the purchase of Mount Vernon on the Potomac, south of the line called Mason and Dixon's;

2. And Edward said, I will straightway prepare a lecture which shall melt the hearts of the people and cause them to contribute their mite unto the fund called Mount Vernon.

3. Now Robert, whose surname is Bonner, when he heard those things, said unto himself, I will gird on my buckler of bank-notes and shekels—and astonish the natives!

4. He accordingly said unto Edward, Thy conduct commands my admiration, write thou but a single year for the Ledger and ten thousand dollars currency of the realm shall be thy reward.

5. And Edward said unto Robert, I accept thy gift-offering to the fund called Mount Vernon, and will write for the New-York Ledger for the space of twelve months.

6. Now Robert was again made happy, yea, thrice happy; for the Ledger did increase and multiply ten, yea twenty fold.

7. And it came to pass in those days that certain scribes, sojourners in the land of Uncle Samuel, became envious of the success of Robert, and they dipped their pens in gall and wormwood, and said, "How are the mighty fallen!"

8. But Edward, the wise man of the East took no heed of their sayings, and continued to write for the Ledger.

And straightway the fiat of the people went forth—Edward is wise and Robert is a "brick!"

CHAPTER III.

1. And it also came to pass in those days that Robert, whose surname is Bonner, had a vision.

2. And in that vision there appeared unto him an angel, bearing a scroll on which was inscribed in letters of gold—"Bennett! Greeley!! Raymond!!!"

3. And Robert said unto himself, the Lion, the Lamb and the Fox shall lie down together, and be enfolded in the sheets of the Ledger.

4. Now, when the multitude heard these things they were greatly amazed, and said one unto the other, Verily, the ways of this man Bonner surpasseth our comprehension.

5. And Robert said unto the multitude, Peace, be still! wait ye a little longer, and "you shall see what you shall see!"

6. And the multitude waited.

7. And it came to pass on the second day of the week, called Monday, that there was a great commotion throughout the land.

8. The Ledger had gone forth on its mission, the multitude threw up their sombreros with joy, for the prediction of Robert was verified.

9. Lo, and behold! the Lion, the Lamb and the Fox reposed lovingly together in the Ledger.

10. And the people throughout the length and breadth of the land, even the dwellers in the land of the Jerseys, shouted with one accord, Bonner is great, and the Ledger is his profit. S. C. U.
